WOMAN AND 2 CHILDREN DISAPPEAR

Police are searching all the Newtons and Needham for some trace of missing Mrs. John McKenna, who took her two little children yesterday morning and disappeared from her home at No. 25 Keefe avenue, Newton Upper Falls, after her husband went to work.

Mrs. McKenna is physically very frail. She is five feet two inches in height and of slender figure. For some time her health has been poor, and it is feared by her friends that her mind has been mildly defective.

They are in fear that some harm has befallen her, and cannot understand how a frail, little woman could have been wandering about for twenty-four hours with two such young children with her without being seen, if no harm has befallen them all.

Find Home Deserted.

McKenna is a moulder in a machine shop in Newton Upper Falls, and when he came home last evening after a hard day's work found his home deserted and cheerless. There was no dinner and neither wife nor child awaiting him. All that he could learn about his missing wife was from neighbors. They had seen her tenderly place her little ones in a gerrett yesterday morning and wheel them away.

One child is five months old and the other sixteen months.

McKenna anxiously searched the neighborhood where he lives for some trace of his missing wife and children. But he could find no one who had seen or heard from them during the day. Finally the distracted husband, after consulting with Rev. Father T. J. Finnaky, the parish priest, for advice and aid—

Appeal to Priest.

it was Father Dansky who notified the police of the strange disappearance of mother and children, and a uniformed officer on duty is looking and inquiring for them. Mrs. McKenna is about thirty-five years old.

If some trace of her is not discovered within a few hours, citizens may organize a searching party.

BARTENDERS TO OPEN CONVENTION MONDAY

The executive committee of the International Order of Bartenders, Waiters, Hotel and Restaurant Employes held a conference at the Revere House in preparation for the convention opening Monday in Faneuil Hall. Boston's representation in the convention will be large. In the city there are 3,700 bartenders, 800 white and 200 colored waiters and 125 cooks.

Those present at the conference were General President T. J. Sullivan, Hartford, Conn.; Secretary-Treasurer Jere L. Sullivan, Cincinnati, Ohio; Vice Presidents "Bob" Hesketh, Seattle; Jere S. McCarthy, Washington; Richard W. Gearity, Omaha; W. F. Robinson, Birmingham, Ala.; W. McCurdy, Des Moines; W. H. Foster, Decatur, Ill.; D. Anderson, Kansas City.

COST IS ASKED ON STREET WIDENING

The Board of Street Commissioners was requested by Mayor Fitzgerald to furnish him with an estimate of the cost of widening Pleasant street, from Washington street park square, together with the estimates of the probable cost of the property developments in Park square, for the last ten years the Pleasant Street widening has been agitated by property owners there and North Boston people, the desire a more direct line from the Broadway extension. Martin M. Lomasney owns property on Pleasant street, but the Mayor said to-day that the matter should be pushed by those who need it rather than those who will benefit by the change.

SOOT-FILLED FLUE DRIVES OUT TWENTY

A soot-filled flue in the three-story tenement at No. 245 West Canton street, South End, drove twenty persons to the street when Mrs. Annie Provost started a fire in the kitchen stove. The smoke poured into the rooms and filled the entire house. The fire department was called. The fire in the stove was put out with a bucket of salt. Then the smokepipes was cleaned.

7,000 CHILDREN AT 'WORLD' SHOW

Seven thousand Sunday school children were the Saturday guests of The World in Boston, having the big exhibition reserved for themselves before the doors were opened at 12:30 for the general public.

At nine o'clock the first delegation of 2,000 children arrived. They came from Congregational Sunday Schools of Boston, which celebrated the annual May Festival. Tots trip to The World in Boston was the big treat for the children in the festival plans.

The festival children went next to Pageant hall for brief exercises. They were welcomed by Rev. William E. Strong, editorial secretary of the American Board of Foreign Missions. The children, their teachers and others present joined in singing a hymn. The children recited the Twenty-third psalm in their shrill treble. The Rev. D. Brewer Eddy offered prayer. A second hymn was followed by the Salute to the Stars and Stripes and the Salute to the Sunday School Flag.

Five-Minute Lectures.

Then the children were taken through the moving picture and exhibition halls where they were entertained and instructed with the lessons of The World in Boston.

Meanwhile a second party of 2,500 children from inter-denominational Sunday schools of Boston and its suburbs had come to exhibition hall to view the exhibits there. They broke up into class groups for five-minute lectures at the principal exhibits. They left at 11 o'clock.

A third batch of 2,500 children came from Sunday Schools outside of Boston proper. The Brockton Sunday School contributed seven special trolley cars full of little ones, under the charge of Keith. This last delegation spent an hour in the exhibition and moving picture halls. Arrangements were made so that the different delegations would not collide. There was room enough in the big World in Boston for all to see the different exhibits and pictures without confusion.

Bishop Nelson Talks.

Among the evening features at the World in Boston were an address at 8:20 in exhibition hall by Bishop C. K. Nelson of Georgia, views of Pagoulund, Syria, India Afrika, China and Hawaii in moving picture hall and the Park Jubilee singers and bell ringers in the Colonial hall. One, is "Giving," by Horace Varney. The other is a Japanese play, "Toki-San."

AHMEEK HOLDERS ARE FOR MERGER

The stockholders of the Ahmeek Mining Company voted in favor of the merger with the Calumet & Hecla Mining Company. Out of the 50,000 shares of the Ahmeek Company 30,865 shares voted, with 35,264 voting in favor. Frederick Hoff, of the New York law firm of Child, Bourne & Shores, entered a formal protest against the vote, saying that it was not legal, in view of the decision rendered by Judge Flannigan at Houghton, Mich., modified the injunction restraining the stockholders from voting. The injunction was issued by Commissioner Marsch last Monday. Judge Flannigan ruled that the stockholders might vote, however, and all further proceedings might be stopped by the court.

RAILROADS YIELD IN TRUNK RATE WAR

CHICAGO, May 6.—Local merchants and trunk manufacturers who have been engaged in a controversy with the railroads over the plan to charge excess baggage rates for long and bulky trunks, including the "wardrobe" trunks and other "freak" shapes and sizes, have been advised that the Trunk Line Association, representing the roads east of Buffalo, has receded somewhat from its position. The roads agree to carry trunks free up to forty-five inches in longest dimension.

CALLS DEAD MAN'S KIN 'VULTURES'

"The cousins of this man who are fighting for his property are like a flock of vultures. Now that Herbert L. Littlefield is dead they come from the West in a horde to feast on the dead corpse. They never cared whether he was thrown into the poorhouse when he is alive, but now they suddenly become affectionate."

These remarks were made by Attorney Henry P. Hurlburt during the final arguments in the Suffolk Probate Court in the contest over the will of Herbert L. Littlefield, the Copley Square Hotel bachelor who committed suicide by jumping into the Charles River. He left an estate of $60,000 to George K. Kimball and Alice Kimball, sons of an old friend of his. Relatives who had not seen him for many years, according to the testimony, contested the will.

After hearing the arguments Judge Grange took the case under advisement.

Mr. Hurlburt further attacked the cousins by saying: "Mr. Littlefield was a quiet, retired gentleman. Every family has its skeleton and the door that locked the skeleton in Herbert Littlefield's closet and those cousins have dragged out the letters of the poor fellow and neither of Littlefield. Harsh as the term sounds, that's the kind of vultures they are."

Attorney W. B. French, for the contestants, argued that Mr. Littlefield was of unsound mind when he made his will and that his suicide was evidence of it.

ILL FALLS TO DEATH IN WATER

The police of the City Point station have as discovered if reason for the death of William McChesney, whose body was found floating in the harbor near the L street bridge, South Boston.

McChesney was forty-five years old and single. He formerly lived at No. 568 First street. For the last fortnight he had slept in the boat house of the Peninsula Rowing and Athletic Association, whose clubhouse and float are at L street bridge. He slept there, as did also Patrick Murphy of No. 287 Second street.

During the night McChesney complained of heart trouble.

"I'd like to see my brother, Charles," he told Murphy several times. At 5:30 a. m. Murphy left the clubhouse. Mc-Chesney was still feeling ill.

Shortly after 6 o'clock the body of McChesney was found floating close to the clubhouse float by Rollins Coyle of No. 642 East Second street and James Nolan of No. 175 K street.

Dr. Medicine think McChesney started to walk across the float and fell into the water, either from stumbling or from an attack of heart trouble. In his weakened condition he had little chance to save himself. McChesney's mother is said to live on Howard street in the West End, but is now at Beachmont with other members of her family.

MONOPLANE WON LONDON FLIGHT

LONDON, May 6.—In the aerial race from London to Brighton to-day Aviator Hamel, using a monoplane, passed all his competitors, arriving first at Brighton and winning the prize of $400. His time was 56 minutes. It was five minutes before the next machine reached Shoreham, the finish line at Brighton. Smith finished second and Gilmour third.

FOURTEEN OVERCOME IN NEW YORK FIRE

NEW YORK, May 6.—More than 100 guests were driven in pade from the Hotel Churchill at Fourteenth street and Broadway when fire broke out in the basement shortly before 8 o'clock this morning. Three alarms were turned in within half an hour.

The fire spread to the Gophir Diamond Company's store adjoining the hotel and then to the jewelry establishment of H. Schloss. From there it went to the store of the Truly Warner Hat Company.

In the first half-hour half a dozen firemen were overcome and were taken our unconscious.

SKULL OF CHILD INDICATES MURDER

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., May 6.—What is believed to be a murder was revealed here early to-day when a dog was found gnawing the skull of a child in a gypsy camp on the outskirts of the town. The skull was that of a girl. The police have held all of the gypsies except Maxaire Talboe, who fled from the camp as soon as he saw them approaching and took to the hills. A posse is hunting for him. In the camp a girl's dress was found bearing the initials G. T. M.

'SURELY GUILTY' BURNS REPEATS

MONTREAL, May 6.—Detective William J. Burns, who is in Montreal in connection with a law suit, declared to-day that he has absolute proof of the guilt of James B. McNamara in connection with the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times building and the killing of twenty-one persons, and denounced the labor leaders who are defending the accused union man.

"Aside from the confession of Mc-Manigal," said Mr. Burns, "there is a chain of physical evidence binding the prisoners perfectly and completely. McNamara is keeping mum, but I have got the man who bought large quantities of dynamite from the Giant powder works under the name of James R. Bryce. We can also prove McManigal's connection with numerous dynamiting outrages and can prove conclusively that J. B. McNamara, secretary-treasurer of the structural iron Workers' Association, directed those men in their criminal work and paid them for it.

"Whether or not friends of these men succeed in put me out of the way, as they are threatening to do, the evidence we expect to confront them with is unanswerable."

TWO ARE HELD ON CHARGE OF FRAUD

Charged with stealing $5,000 worth of jewelry, clothing and rugs from several concerns, Israel Aronter and his son-in-law, Joseph Guretin, were arraigned in the Suffolk Superior Criminal Court on two indictments containing twenty-four counts and were each held in $5,000 after pleading not guilty. Both own lived at No. 124 Chestnut street, Chelsea. The government alleges that the two men gave large orders to their various relatives to go to stores and get goods. After the goods were received by the men it was shipped to different places where relatives lived, according to the government.

HORSE TRAINER IS HURT IN RUNAWAY

Daniel Collins, employed to break in a green horse for use at the Notre Dame convent in Roxbury, suffered a bad fracture of the right leg when the horse collided at the Perkins and Chestnut streets entrance to the Fenway after taking flight at an auto driven by Chester A. Reed of Dedham. The horse was caught in front of the convent entrance, just as it was about to overrun three aged women.

STEVENS BARS FOSS PROBER

Expert Accountant Harvey S. Chase, who has been investigating the State treasury and the State auditing departments under authority from Governor Foss, was barred from the books and papers he wished to see in the former office by State Treasurer Stevens.

There is ill-feeling between the expert and the State Treasurer. It has been publicly expressed by statements by both men since the Ways and Means Committee hearing, where Mr. Chase says he was cut off and made the victim of an unfair political deal. Mr. Stevens has said several things reflecting on Mr. Chase's competency as an expert. Mr. Chase has asked for another hearing before the committee. He visited the State Treasurer's office to look over the books and papers in connection with his investigation. State Treasurer Stevens asked him—

Asks for Authority.

"What do you want?"

"I want to see everything," replied Mr. Chase.

"You write out what you want to know and see," said Mr. Stevens, "and call again with a letter of authority from Governor Foss and you will be allowed to carry on your investigation."

While this conversation went on Mr. Stevens had his stenographer at his elbow to take down all that he and the other said, and Mr. Chase's stenographer stood by his side and in the pink in short hand all that was spoken.

After the verbal round was over, Mr. Chase left the State Treasurer's office and went to that of the Governor's. Mr. Chase and Governor Foss had a conference and what either said has not been stated. But soon Mr. Chase left the Governor's office he said with decision:

Clash Comes Monday.

"I shall visit the State Treasurer's office on Monday with a letter of authority and I shall then continue my investigation of that department."

Treasurer Stevens is a Republican and Governor Foss is a Democrat. The Republican organization appears to look with disfavor on an investigation of State departments by agents or experts named by a Democratic Governor.

DIES OF BURNS IN GRASS FIRE

While working as track walker for the Boston & Maine Railroad, Charles Waitt, aged sixty-five, was burned to death in trying to extinguish a grass fire along the railroad tracks near Ipswich. Waitt was found by Charles Grant. His body was burned to a crisp. Waitt was subject to fainting spells and it is thought he fainted while trying to quench the flames. Appleton's bridge was partly burned in the fire.

Waitt was a widower and a G. A. R. veteran. He is survived by a married daughter, postmaster at Ipswich, and a married daughter.

CITY'S FUNDED DEBT IS OVER $114,000,000

The gross funded debt of the city of Boston is $114,581,156, according to the April report of City Auditor Mitchell just issued. This is a decrease of $180,083.33 since December, 1910. The net funded debt of the city is $72,598,811.25, a decrease of $341,272.06 since the figures of December, 1910. The borrowing capacity of the city on April 30 was $2,971,995.47. At the high water mark, in 1908, it was $3,780,983.47, but land and buildings for schools and the amounts borrowed for the construction of highways has reduced the

ART DIRECTOR IVES OF ST. LOUIS DEAD

LONDON, May 6.—Halsey Cooley Ives, director of the city art museum of St. Louis, Mo., who was stricken with apoplexy yesterday, died late last night. He was widely known in this and other countries for his attainments in the field of art. He was chief of the art departments at the Chicago and St. Louis expositions in America. He was born in Havana, N. Y., in 1844, and served in the Civil War. His widow was Miss Margaret Lackland of St. Louis, before his marriage.

MEXICO CITY IS IN REVOLT AGAINST DIAZ

Army Ready to Cross Border, But President Waits for Congress to Act.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Following official advices from Ambassador Wilson that the long expected revolt has broken out in Mexico City, Secretary of War Dickinson, Major General Wood, chief of staff, and Representative Hay, chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, were called to the White House to-day for a conference with President Taft. Active steps looking toward intervention in Mexico were taken.

More Troops Ready to Move.

General Wood informed President Taft that plans to move additional troops to San Antonio have been ready for nearly a month and the War Department only needs orders to dispatch 8,000 more troops at once to Texas. Warning orders were telegraphed to Major-General Carter, commanding at San Antonio, instructing him to put the troops in readiness for an instant forward movement.

The War Department for several weeks has had complete plans ready for mobilization of the national Guard, which will in the event of intervention be called out simultaneously with the San Antonio troops to cross the border.

President Taft after the conference reiterated to congressional callers his stated policy that he will send a special message to Congress for authority to intervene, but he hopes the situation will not vary, and that under no circumstances would he order intervention without authority of Congress.

Rioting in the Capital.

Ambassador Wilson has informed the State Department that rioting started in the City of Mexico late last night and has since broken out all over the city. As soon as the police and the troops put down the rioting in one part disorder starts in another section.

President Diaz has retired to Chapultepec Castle and has isolated himself. The ambassador believes that the resignation of Diaz cannot long be delayed, according to information which was received at the State Department to-day, though the officials refused to make public all of the dispatch. At the time it was filed foreigners were not being molested by the mobs. Foreign Minister de la Barra and Minister of War Cosio were directing operations against the rioters.

An order has been issued by President Diaz that all business houses shall be closed until further notice. The banquet which was to have been given to the American minister has been cancelled. Terror prevails in the city. It is reported that the revolutionists are approaching the capital rapidly and the rioters are encouraged by this report. Many have been killed and wounded.

Diaz is Still Defiant.

Diaz, for twenty-six years President of Mexico, has defied his enemies, repudiated his personal friends and refused to accede to the demands of the foes of the present government and step down and out of his self-created office.

The reply from Diaz to Madero was sent after the most gloomy holiday that the Mexican capital has seen. The usual military parade, held to commemorate the victory over the French at Puebla, was called off and there was a dearth of the usually numerous white suits, a sure sign of fear among the better classes. Even the shop keepers began to deplete their capitals.

At 10 o'clock last night fully 10,000 persons started a riot in the Constitutional plaza, marching past the National Palace, the Presidential palace and shouting "Viva Madero!" Cries for a republic and the construction of highways has reduced the Mayor Fitzgerald was a volunteer firefighter to-day, lugging a line of hose garden hose) and hooking the stream till the regular department came and took over the job.

MAYOR FIGHTS GARAGE BLAZE

The fire was caused by an explosion of gasoline in the one-story wooden garage in the rear of William A. Crosby's home at Nos. 40-42 Rossdale street, Dorchester. The explosion set fire to the garage. The garage and a touring car were destroyed, and the Crosby residence was damaged. The total damage was estimated at $5,000.

Daly Starts Probe.

The igniting of the gasoline from the garage fire started the Mayor to wondering if the garage was not nearer the house than the fire laws permit in case of buildings used for storage of gasoline and similar fuel or explosives.

When he arrived at City Hall the Mayor asked Fire Commissioner Daly to have investigations made in the residence sections, to see if private garages are not being built too near houses and causing grave risk of fire, through explosions.

Mayor Hero of Garage.

The Mayor was spinning along Talbot avenue in his automobile when he saw smoke over Rossdale street way. He arrived at the crosby place as the flames were shooting up from the garage.

The Mayor seized a garden hose and advanced with the smoke near to the flames and played the stream on the fire like a veteran.

A crowd collected and cheered the volunteer fireman.

COOKING SPURNED WIFE ASKS DIVORCE

Mrs. Ethel S. Murray, in the East Cambridge Divorce Court, asked Judge Jeo to grant her a divorce from Joseph H. Murray of Malden on the grounds that her husband had long cruel. She said she went to Portland at his invitation, in the Autumn of 1909, after she had known him about a month, and that she completed her to marry him. She says he kept a record of it, as he was in the habit of entertaining her with it when she asked him for money. One of her complaints is that he would not eat her cooking, and said: "I am not going to be bossed by any woman." The suit is contested.

$8,000 BLAZE AT LACONIA, N. H.

LACONIA, N. H., May 6.—Twenty horses, including one of the most famous trotters in the country, were burned to death and the Armory of the Coast Artillery Corps, in this city, the Court House and the residential section of the town were threatened by a fire early to-day, which destroyed the armory and a half-story wooden stable of Charles French in Fort street. The loss is $8,000.

Fred Caverley, a stableband, narrowly escaped death. He was asleep in the rear of the stable. When he awoke his escape by means of the door had been cut off and he was obliged to crawl out through a rear window.

BOSTON WOMEN IN VOTE PARADE

NEW YORK, May 6.—To-day's march of the suffragettes is the greatest event of the kind America has ever seen. The leaders were confident that more than five thousand would be in line. From the time they awoke they were busily engaged in preparations for the demonstration.

Crowds gathered early around the headquarters of the suffragette organizations and banners were distributed and orders given for the big parade scheduled to start at 3:30 this afternoon. Society women, professional women and working girls were lined up ready to march shoulder to shoulder. Prominent in the early formation was a delegation of women physicians from the Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, who wore caps and gowns as a part of their uniform. The Boston delegation was equally conspicuous. Another notable group consisted of representative women voters from the west, who were assigned a position near the front of the procession. For the head of the line there was an enormous banner bearing the words:

"Forward out of error,
Leave behind the night;
Forward, through the darkness,
Forward into light."

Mrs. Belmont Absent.

This was guarded by three young women representing the organization having the demonstration in charge—the Women's Political Union, the College Suffrage League and the Woman's Suffrage party.

The only suffrage party in the city not officially taking part in the parade will be Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont's Political Equality Association. However, many of the individual members of the association propose to march. Following the procession there will be a mass meeting in Union square.

The Massachusetts delegation was one of the most picturesque in the line of march. Prominent in it were Mrs. Gertrude R. Newell, a leading society woman of Brookline, who carried the Julia Ward Howe banner. It was made of gold cloth and inscribed with black letters. The lettering read:

"Julia Ward Howe
1819—1910
Always Young
For Liberty."

Banners Bring Applause.

The banner attracted great attention throughout the route of the parade. It was the most expensive and most elaborate of any of those carried.

Another Boston woman marched with Mrs. Newell. She was Mrs. George Hyde Page and she carried the Lucy Stone banner. This was of white silk with gold lettering. It bore the inscription: "Single Justice Is What The World Needs."

Miss Agnes Ryan, business manager of the Woman's Journal of the city, carried a Mary A. Livermore banner of royal purple and fine gold trimmings. Other banners were carried by Mrs. H. S. Lincoln and Mrs. Dr. Arthur T. Guy, both of Boston.

Wilfrid Smith, subtly barks a sufficient air, stepped up and told her ladyship not to talk too much. And she stopped.

DECLARE TRUCE IN RAILROAD WAR

Vice-President Fitzhugh of the Grand Trunk Railway, discussing to-day the presence of himself and other officials of the system in Boston and their plans for extension in New England, said:

"We came to Boston to attend a conference called by the Governor of Vermont. The meeting was held in the office of President Mellen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford and Boston & Maine railroads, at the North Station. Inasmuch as the conference was called by the Governor of Vermont it is proper that a statement as to what took place should be made by him.

Boston Plan Considered.

"The Grand Trunk management feels very grateful for the action taken by both branches of the Great Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, the Municipal Government and the various commercial organizations, for the courteous welcome to the press and to the people of all New England for the many kindly expressions and invitations to the Grand Trunk. This matter, I understand, has been referred to our president, Charles M. Hays, and the Board of Directors in London, and I am sure it will receive careful consideration."

Mr. Fitzhugh said that following the enactment of the amendment to his Rhode Island charter, organization of the Southern New England Railway Company, the Grand Trunk's subsidiary, would be proceeded with at once.

The amendment was signed by Governor Pothier of Rhode Island late yesterday, following its passage by the two houses of the Legislature. Under it the Grand Trunk, through the Southern Railway of New England, is enabled to reach tidewater at Providence by building over and under the tracks of the New York, New Haven & Hartford. The amendment was agreed upon at a recent conference of officials of the two big railway systems.

Governor Mead Satisfied.

John Abner Mead, Governor of Vermont, took a train from the North station for Montpelier late evening. The Governor was feeling fine.

He considered that he had spent a magnificent day. He had passed the hand of Charles H. Mellen, president of the New Haven Railroad, in that of Vice-President Fitzhugh of the Grand Trunk and with a few well chosen words had made friends of those old enemies.

He was certain that there would no longer be strife between the two great railroads because the railroad presidents had behaved like lambs in his presence.

Under such circumstances a satisfactory arrangement of the trouble at Brattleboro, Vt., between the two railroads did not take long and the Governor departed with the assurance that the New Haven road would not be compelled to leave Vermont, although nobody explained to him just how the difficulty would be arranged.

At Young's Hotel just before his departure, the Governor was shown an editorial in the AMERICAN which suggested publicity for the proceedings of the conference. He said:

"I was actuated solely in the interests of the people of Vermont, and I moved at the request of the citizens of Brattleboro. It is perfectly true that I was ready to call a special session of the Legislature had this conference failed to bear fruit, but that also would be in the interest of the State of Vermont.

"But the Vermont Legislature had already disposed of the New Haven proposition to build into Brattleboro," it was suggested.

New Plan, He Says.

"Certainly, and I would not have asked the Legislature to reconsider the old proposition of the New Haven road at all," the Governor replied. "That is dead and done with. But the New Haven now makes a new proposition by which it will enter Brattleboro farther to the east and will not in any way interfere with the Grand Trunk. The former proposal was turned down because it meant the crossing of the Grand Trunk's station yard and cutting off part of its main line. The new plan would not be ubnoxious."

"Did the Grand Trunk agree to it?"

"Well, of course, the Grand Trunk wants the New Haven to enter over its lines instead of building a separate road, but that matter is easy of arrangement.

"Then what was the need of so much secrecy about this conference?"

"I didn't know there was any secrecy about it. There was nothing said at the conference that could not have been heard by reporters. There was not a single harsh word or raised voice. Mr. Mellen and Mr. Fitzhugh are both gentlemen and they were as polite and courteous as could be. It was just a matter of getting together and the troubles widely apparent so big a distance can be settled by a few kind words."

"Do you remember any of the kind words they were passed by the railroad presidents?"

"Well, not exactly, but each gave the most careful consideration of every remark and was disposed always to take the reasonable view. I am awfully glad I arranged the conference. You know it was my idea to have the officials get together and settle the matter. Oh, yes.

"Competitors can be up to better business than quarreling. If both work hard to develop the country and the business they possess, and each lets the other alone, they will get along prosperously and comfortably.

"Mr. Mellen is a broad gauge man. You Boston people ought to give him a pat on the back for all the things he is planning to do in New England. He is going to build up this section.

"Both Mellen and Fitzhugh see the possibilities of Vermont and they want to get as much of the business as possible. You know the marble quarries of Vermont are only just beginning to be developed."

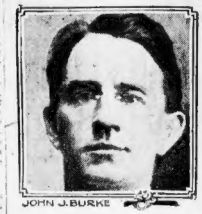
JOHN J. BURKE, WHO IS WAGING VIGOROUS CONTEST CAMPAIGN



JOHN J. BURKE

By THE CONTEST EDITOR.

Notice to all candidates in the AMERICAN'S great $35,000 Prize Contest:

Be sure to see the Daily AMERICAN Monday and read the Contest Editor's announcement of a special May offer.

This offer will be of utmost interest to every candidate. That is all that the Contest Editor cares to say about it to-day. Watch for it in Monday's AMERICAN.

The Contest Editor also wishes to notify all candidates that the Contest Department will not send out or give out any more vote tests until the next list of candidates' standing including vote totals is published on Sunday May 14. So do not write or call up the Contest Department for vote totals. They will be published on May 14. Wait until then.

Candidates intend to get the Sunday AMERICAN to-morrow. It contains the big ten-vote Sunday coupon which is too important to overlook. You know it only takes 100 of these Sunday coupons to make up 1,000 votes for you.

Among the liveliest District Three candidates in this Contest is John J. Burke of Newburyport. Mr. Burke is campaigning actively not only in Newburyport but also in the neighboring town of Amesbury and up in Lawrence and Haverhill. He is a permanent member of the Knights of Columbus and looks to fellow Knights to boom his candidacy.

CUT COUPON FOR FLAG TO-MORROW

In the Sunday AMERICAN to-morrow the first Flag coupon will be printed.

Start clipping Flag coupons to-morrow. You will find them on page 2 of the Sunday and Daily AMERICAN. In case you miss a day, don't give up. Start clipping a new series of coupons.

Everyone wants one of the AMERICAN'S beautiful flags. Memorial Day is only three weeks off. The Stars and Stripes will beautify your home on that patriotic holiday.

Last year the AMERICAN distributed thousands of flags under a similar coupon offer. But the demand against last year for flags could not possibly have been foreseen. This year the Flag Department of the AMERICAN at No. 225 Devonshire street is fully prepared for the biggest kind of a rush. It can supply any possible demand without delay to applicants.

Applicants should understand clearly that all mail orders must be addressed to Flag Department, Boston American, P. O. Box 3047, Boston.

The AMERICAN is not responsible for money sent through the mail in any form other than Post Office money orders, checks or stamps. Do not send cash through the mail.

How do you get a flag?

Beginning to-morrow a flag coupon will appear in each issue of the Daily and Sunday AMERICAN till further notice.

Clip seven coupons of consecutive dates and either bring or send them with thirty-five cents to the Flag Department, as directed.

The flag which the AMERICAN gives under this offer is of solid woven bunting of highest grade, with colors absolutely fast. The stripes are sewed throughout with double rows of stitching and the corners are solidly fastened. A heavy canvas border, with large brass grommets for ropes, completes it.

Get to-morrow's Sunday AMERICAN and clip the first coupon.

WOMAN ENDS LIFE WITH CHLOROFORM

Mrs. Julia A. Kittredge, a widow, was found dead, with a cone that had contained chloroform over her face, in her room at the home of her cousin, Byron Brown, No. 108 Main street, Waltham. Mrs. Kittredge, who was sixty-one years old, had been in poor health some time.

MARRY ME, NORAH

And I'll buy the ring of the original and only Mr. Loose Leaf, who makes systems gold wedding rings to right ones fathers. So do not write or call up the Contest Department for vote totals. They will be published on May 14. Wait until then.

Candidates intend to get the Sunday AMERICAN to-morrow. It contains the big ten-vote Sunday coupon which is too important to overlook. You know it only takes 100 of these Sunday coupons to make up 1,000 votes for you.

Drummers Profit by Empress's Gift of Soap.

ATHENS—A striking example of German commercial enterprise is astonishing the Greeks. While she and her husband were visiting his splendid residence at Corfu, not long ago, the Empress of Germany presented a small tablet of soap to each workman engaged in the archaeological excavations at Corfu. Soap is a luxury to these workmen; some of them indulged in the dissipation of using it; others preserved it as a souvenir. Within a week after the imperial distribution German drummers swarmed in and around Corfu and drove a roaring trade in tablets of soap identical with those the Empress had given. Hearing of this the Emperor said to his spouse, as report goes: "You are a true pioneer of German trade."

Empress Eugenie Is 85.

LONDON—Yesterday was the birthday of the Empress Eugenie, widow of Napoleon III., the deposed Emperor of the French. She was born at Grenada, Spain, on May 5, 1826. At eighty-five the Empress is easily the most panache figure in Europe. She is living a secluded and lonely life at Farnborough, a small town in Hampshire thirty miles from London. She is feeble and deaf and short-sighted. She does not go into society and is visited by few people except Queen Alexandra and the King and Queen of Spain, of whom she is very fond. She never misses her annual visit to Paris, always staying at the Hotel Continental, which overlooks the gardens which in her days of glory she used to view from the windows of the Tuileries.

Record Bids for Pictures.

LONDON—Record bids were made at Christie's for pictures of the Italian schools. Professor Langton Douglas paid 10,500 guineas (about $108,950) for a panel of the St. Zenobius series by Botticelli, and Mr. Sully bid 12,200 guineas (about $64,576) for a Pieta signed "Andreas Mantenes," but catalogued as by Vittore Carpaccio.

Protest Cable Combine.

LONDON—The Financial News says that a number of large holders in the companies affected by the cable combine are strongly opposed to the scheme, and that if it is persisted in they in all probability will seek the assistance of the courts.

Services for King Edward.

LONDON—Memorial services for King Edward were held to-day at Windsor on the anniversary of his death. King George, Queen Mary and other members of the royal family attended.

New Post for Gladstone.

LONDON—It is announced, unofficially, that W. C. E. Gladstone, grandson of the great statesman, who is on the staff of Mr. Bryce, Ambassador at Washington, will be appointed Lord Lieutenant of Flintshire.

WILL OPERATE ON LADY DECIES

LONDON, May 6.—A remarkable case of fortitude, or social bravery, is presented in the case of Lady Decies, formerly Miss Vivien Gould, who has ruled that a case of appendicitis must not interfere with her presentation to King George V. on May 10. The day following her presentation she will undergo an operation and have the offending appendix removed.

Lady Decies won a distinct social triumph when arrangements were made by her husband that she should be the first American to be presented to the new King. Fully two score American women, who have married into the English peerage, coveted the honor, and believed their claim much stronger than that of the Gould heiress. But Lady Decies was designated as the first American to be formally presented to the King and the presentation is to take place at a levee at Buckingham Palace.

Minimize Her Illness.

Yesterday Lady Decies was quite low with an attack of appendicitis and it seemed an operation was imminent.

When the American correspondent discovered the state of her health, and asked members of her family about it, Lord Decies himself minimized the indisposition of his wife. It was thought that this was done because Mrs. Anthony Drexel, Jr., the eldest daughter of Mrs. George J. Gould, is being attended by her mother at Lakewood in expectation of an interesting event, and that an alarming report might draw her from the bedside of one daughter across the ocean to the bedside of another.

To the great surprise of her friends, Lady Decies was out yesterday, and it was after her appearance in public that Lord Decies admitted she had suffered an attack of appendicitis, but had recuperated in wonderful fashion.

Attacks Are Recurrent.

Lord Decies said that his wife was subject to recurrent appendicitis, and that surgeons have advised having her appendix removed. He said that the operation probably will be performed officiously, but did not expect her illness to interfere with her court presentation. To-night Lord Decies set as the probable time for the operation May 11, the day after Lady Decies's presentation at court. He said: "My wife and I went to 'Fanny's First Play,' by Bernard Shaw, last night. There is no cause for alarm over Lady Decies's condition. For three years her bodyhas had appendicitis disturbance, and we have just decided that she will be operated upon on May 11, following her appearance at court. This will cause no interference in her participation in the coronation ceremonies and there has been no mention of going to America for the operation."

"I think that the case is too slight for the members of Lady Decies' family to cross here on account of the operation. We have not selected a surgeon for the operation. Only a fortnight will be required for her convalescence, owing to the perfect health of Lady Decies."

Lord Decies' Aims.

Further, Lord Decies discussed his own aims and ambition. He said that he was going into politics in earnest, and has petitioned the House of Lords to award him the right to vote in that body as an Irish peer, and that the Lord Chancellor is now considering his claim.

Lady Decies, after her abrupt recovery to-day, took up again her preparations for presentation at court. She will wear the train of her wonderful wedding dress and a frock of white embroidered with rhinestones. The original wedding dress was too tight for the court curtsey, and alterations in it are now under way. She will wear the diamond tiara, necklace and corsage ornaments which were her parents' wedding gifts.

Lady Decies is rehearsing the difficult curtsey. She must bow low to each royal personage as a lifeguard carries the enormous train. When leaving the room the train is thrown literally over the outstretched arm of the woman presented. As the bearer must back from the presentation chamber.

HETTY GREEN'S SECRETS OUT

ST. LOUIS, May 6.—The secret of Hetty Green's millions is out. She didn't give it away. Not Hetty. It's al her son's fault. He talked about it in an unguarded moment. Here it is:

She never trusts the rich. She always makes them pay.

She trusts the poor; they always pay.

Colonel E. H. R. Green, who is Hetty Green's son, was looking at some property in St. Louis, when he gave the secret away. He was there to collect $1,400 rent overdue for the last seven months.

"We might have worried about it if the building had been occupied by rich persons," said Green. "They are the hardest to collect from. The worst tenant we have of any of our properties in the United States is worth $10,000,000.

"By the way, I am still getting letters from women who want to marry me. One girl in Cincinnati has reached the point now where she calls me 'lovey-dovey and darling.'

"She said in her last letter that she knew I must be busy caring for our money, but that she hoped I would soon find time to run over and marry her.

A tailors stood by while the Colonel was talking and the chauffeur cranked it at this junction. The engines began sputtering and humming.

"It have to go," said the Colonel. "The sound of that engine gives me heart failure. Think of the expense."

BURGESS REPAIRING SHATTERED BIPLANE

W. Starling Burgess of Marblehead is superintending repairs on his shattered biplane which, when at an altitude of fifty feet, shot earthward, crushing its centre plane and chassis by the impact. Wear Your Own Hair

A MARVELLOUS DISCOVERY WHICH GROWS HAIR IN 30 DAYS—"CRYSTOLIS"

$1,000.00 REWARD IF THEY FAIL

Everybody will be pleased to learn that the startling increase of baldness has been checked at last by the discovery of a remarkable drug which actually grows hair on bald heads. The discovery of having to wear a wig disappears and women who are rapidly becoming bald, or who have already lost most of their hair, "Crystolis," Co. have given to this wonderful drug, has been tested in every way, and it has been found that it will actually cover the human head with hair, provided that the hair roots have not been destroyed, in about 30 days. Its properties are so remarkable that not only does it grow hair, but it also improves the quality of hair already existing, so that if gray or faded it will frequently restore it to its natural color within a few days. Another important argument for its use is its far lower than that of any other hair tonic. It is almost as quick in growing hair, as in promoting growth, such as tonics, pomades, etc., with no tangible result, have found that "Crystolis" will do what the other things are said to do—grow hair. Some its discovery by the Co. over a year ago, it has taken the world by storm, and thousands of men and women are now living proofs of its efficiency. It has been found that almost every known hair trouble will succumb to its influence, and minor cases of scalp or hair diseases, such as dandruff, falling hair, itching scalp, etc., have been completely cured with two or three applications.

It is confidently urged that "Crystolis" would promote human hair growth as strongly as it promotes growth of hair upon animals, if the following descriptions. Test after test was made with almost miraculous results. Horses, cows, dogs, horses, etc., will welcome it as a means of restoring the coats of pets to their natural beauty when disfigured by hair defects. As a hair dressing "Crystolis" is undoubtedly unexcelled. It contains no oil whatever, yet it makes the hair soft and glossy, with a tendency to fluffiness.

Many of those who have used "Crystolis" report most astonishing results. Mr. A. H. D. of Brighton says that he started a new growth of hair in 30 days. Mrs. E. M. of Boston says that "Crystolis" is, as a hair dressing, unrivalled, while that it stopped his hair from coming out within 10 days after the first application.

Miss Florence Moore, the popular American actress now playing in London, says: "The change it has made in my hair seems almost miraculous. In just one 10 inches longer than it was before I began the treatment, and it looks so pretty when it is done up that I am sure it will greatly add to the beauty of my hair."

Mr. M. Orben of London, Eng., writes: "When I began the 'Crystolis' treatment I was nearly bald, but in the six weeks that I have been using it I have obtained a new growth of nice black hair about one inch long. I had commenced to think that there was nothing that would really grow hair, and it comes to me like a new gift. Really, as I look at least five years younger, now I am glad I have been using it."

Many people write "it sounds too good to be true." But surely the test will tell.

The managers of the Crystolis Laboratories have such implicit faith in "Crystolis" that they have decided to make the following remarkable offer: They will forfeit $1,000 to any one of the readers of this paper who can prove that "Crystolis" actually grows hair. They will forfeit $1,000 to any one who can prove that they have ever sold a single bottle of "Crystolis" that did not grow hair. They will forfeit $1,000 to any one who can prove that "Crystolis" will not grow hair on bald heads, or cure any kind. They will forfeit $1,000 to any one who can prove that testimonials and statements which they publish is not absolutely genuine. MRS. DODGE ON VERGE OF COLLAPSE

Greatly Affected as Shooting Is Re-enacted in Court Room for Benefit of Jury

GUILDHALL, Vt., May 6.—Mrs. Florence M. Dodge was on the verge of a second collapse today, following her breakdown last night, when in the course of her trial on the charge that she murdered William A. Heath, the tragedy was re-enacted in the court room, with a young lawyer impersonating the dead patient.

The accused woman was very pale when she came into court. The week's ordeal of holding her feelings well in hand proved too much for her, and last night she had a hysterical fit of weeping. It was feared that there would be a repetition of it today, but she managed to maintain her self-control, although with apparent great effort.

"Oh, how can they weave such a story to show that I shot Mr. Heath," exclaimed the distraught woman when she broke down. "I didn't shoot him."

Evidence was introduced today that indicated that it might be shown that Heath was on a stepladder when he was shot.

Civil Engineer on Stand.

Court opened at 8:45. E. H. Hunter, civil engineer from Dartmouth College, resumed the stand. Howe questioned him:

Q.—Would it be possible for a person standing at work to be shot as Heath was in the bedroom of the Dodge home? A.—Yes. If the revolver were held on or near the floor by a person lying down or stooping.

Q.—How far away would the revolver be? A.—Between 5 and 10 feet.

Q.—Why do you say that? A.—It would vary according to the different natural attitudes possible, in any one of which the person shot might be. The higher the shoulders, the closer the revolver would have to be fired.

Q.—Assuming a person to be at work at the corner where Heath was shot, could he have been shot from any point in the hall? A.—No, sir; not from any point. Not feet between the two points that you mentioned.

Illustrates Shooting.

Samuel Richardson was called to the court again to illustrate how the witness believed Heath was shot. Richardson represented Heath. He knelt on his left knee, with his left hand on the floor. The defendant stood to watch the demonstration. Then Hunter was questioned as follows:

Q.—Assuming the person that is standing erect and the person doing the shooting to be standing erect, how would the persons have to be placed? A.—The person shot would have to be on some sort of a ladder.

Q.—How nigh up? A.—With his head touching the ceiling in a ten foot room.

This is the first time the stepladder has been brought into the case. There was one in the room in which Heath was shot and the government may attempt to show that the painter was on the stepladder when he received his fatal wound.

Hunter was cross examined by Sargent.

Q.—Are you serious or acting in your last answers? A.—I'm serious.

Q.—Do you think a person could stand erect and hold revolver in his own hand and discharge a shot through his own body? A.—No.

Q.—Do you think he could hold a gun at the proper distance from the ground, in his own hand, and discharge the weapon in the same direction as you assume? A.—I understand your question.

Q.—Will you point out on Mr. Amey the way you think the shot passed through Mr. Heath's body?

Demonstrates With Chalk.

Using Amey as a subject, Hunter demonstrated the entrance and exit of the bullet.

White chalk crosses were put on Amey's coat by Hunter at both points.

Q.—Do you agree, now you serious, when you say a man must be standing on a stepladder in a ten foot room to obtain that a person would have to be on a stepladder, did you assume the person and have the wound inflicted as in fact was in a position to take aim?

A.—Yes.

Richardson was again called into the box and placed in the position it was assumed Heath was in when he was shot.

Q.—Now tell us how great is the curve from the Richardson's body. After measuring, Hunter answered: "Two and a half inches."

Tests in your experiments, did you take the general direction of the bullet, or the direction at right angles to the body through which the wound passed? A.—The general direction.

Q.—Why? A.—The thought had not occurred to me, and in any case, the difference would be slighter.

Q.—Are you sure of that? A.—I feel sure of it.

Q.—How much difference would that make in the course of the bullet at a distance of fifteen feet? A.—About 2½ inches.

Q.—That would make quite a difference in your estimate of where the bullet came from? A.—No.

Q.—Do you mean that? A.—I mean what I say.

Richardson Remonstrates.

Sargent placed Richardson in a position with his body standing slightly downward instead of upward. Sargent was very particular in urging the position and Richardson remonstrated. Judge Hall said:

"I think he's doing the best he can."

A stick was laid along Richardson's back and arranged in a position about parallel to the floor.

Q.—Now, where will the line along which you assume the shot passed strike the floor? A.—The line will not strike the floor.

Hunter resumed his chair. An experiment was made to determine how far away a person could naturally be to fire a shot along the line of the wound. It was found to be about twenty feet.

Q.—Is there anything in the physical conditions in the Dodge house to prevent a shot being fired at a man kneeling at the headboard at the far end of the bedroom, and the person firing the shot standing in the front door way A.—I do not know whether the bureau is in the way or not. I think there is nothing to prevent it.

Q.—What is the distance between the front door and the position of a person on knees on in your last answer? A.—About twenty-five feet.

Blue Print of Room.

Q.—What is the distance from the large pool of blood to the front door of the house? A.—Twenty-seven feet.

Q.—Is there a physical obstacle in the line of a shot from the right side of the door to the upper side of the pool of blood? A.—Such a shot is not impossible.

Q.—Is "mere anything to prevent a shot being fired from the hall by a person standing at the foot of the stairs at a man with his chest over the center of the pool of blood? A.—There is a dresser in the way; but assuming it is not too high, there is no obstacle.

Q.—What is that distance? A.—Twenty-four feet.

Questioned by Judge Hall:

Q.—What is the distance between the opposite corners of this bedroom? A.—Eighteen feet, three inches.

By Sargent:

Q.—You have made several answers based upon what you call the natural position of a man on the floor. What would you expect to be the natural position of a man who, while at work on the floor, heard two shots in rapid succession behind him? A.—I don't know.

Q.—Would you expect him to duck? A.—I don't know.

Q.—Suppose he heard two shots and turned quickly to the left to look what effect could that have?

How objected to the question on the grounds there is no evidence to that effect. The court admitted the question. Lefeaux waived an objection.

A.—He might receive a wound; I'm not sure about the position. The data is insufficient for me to answer surely. I'm not sure that is what you mean.

Q.—Could he receive such a wound from the back of a person standing erect, supposing that he turned his head and ducked his head? A.—It is possible, I suppose.

Q.—But you have no idea what position a man would take under those conditions? A.—No.

Q.—Could a man at work on his hands and knees receive such a shot as this from a razor in the hands of a person standing erect or twenty feet away? A.—Impossible.

Q.—Doesn't the possibility of such a fact as this depend on what position he happened to be in? A.—Yes.

Q.—And the position of Heath when he was shot, you don't know? A.—No.

Redirect examination by How:

Q.—Have you attempted to determine Heath's position A.—I have experimented in an endeavor to determine the angles.

Q.—When you testified in your direct examination that a person would have to be on a stepladder, did you assume the person and have the wound inflicted as in fact was in a position to take aim?

A.—Yes.

The next witness called was Dr. H. N. Sanford. He was questioned by How.

Q.—You testified that he was State's bacteriologist and that he had performed more than a thousand autopsies in his medical career since 1891. He is physical director at Dartmouth College.

No Powder Marks on Clothing.

Q.—Did you examine Heath's clothing to see whether there was any marks of powder on them? A.—Yes.

Q.—Were there any powder marks? A.—No.

Q.—Did you examine his frock where a bullet passed through? A.—Yes.

Q.—Have you had much experience with pistol wounds? A.—Quite a little.

Q.—What did the shape of the hole indicate? A.—It indicated the course of the shot at an angle with the surface of the body.

Q.—Did you examine the heart? A.—Yes.

Q.—Assume Heath received his wound while on his knees at the headboard, how could he have fallen? A.—He would drop to the floor in a crouching position and his body would not have straightened out. In weight of the body would have rolled him on his side.

RIOTERS RULE MEXICO CITY

whose anti-American outbreaks have caused anxiety for several months.

Three hundred police were rushed to the plaza and charged the rioters, finally dispersing them after a hard struggle and driving them to their homes.

By midnight the city was again normal, but the police patrolled the streets and prevented the crowds from congregating. Shortly after the alarm over the riot had subsided, a report spread through the city that the rebel army under General Miranda had begun its march upon the capital from Ajusco and that fighting was in progress at Tacubaya on the outskirts of the city.

Armistice is Extended.

Because of the interruption of the wires between Juarez and Mexico City, delaying the answer of President Diaz to the demands of General Madero, the latter has decided to extend the armistice which was to have ended at noon to-day. No attack will be made on Juarez if this reply is received and then only if demands of the revolutionists are rejected.

With dawn came the news that Torreon had fallen, at once rebels had taken Rio Verde, between San Luis Potosi and Tampico, killing the Jefe Politco and getting into position to cut the railroad to Tampico.

General Blanquet, leaving Puebla with 1,200 men, fought the rebels at Colon and routed with 200, the remainder having been killed or deserted.

The cabinet urged Diaz to resign but failed to move him. Petitions have been signed by almost every professional man in this city asking his resignation, and the employers of all big houses asked him to quit.

The rebels are striking sledge hammer blows in many sections of the country. The most important news was that Torreon, a thriving city of 30,000 inhabitants, and the seventh in size in Mexico, had been captured by the insurrection under General Lobejo. This city is in the rich Laguna district of Coahuila. There is a large colony of Americans there.

Late advices are to the effect that Saltillo, which has an American colony of between 400 and 500, is besieged by a mixed force of rebels and bandits and is in imminent peril of capture.

The rebels have practically isolated Mexico city from the rest of the republic. The Western Union lines are interrupted to all offices in the states of Sinaloa, Sonora, Chihuahua, Durango, Guerrero and Morelos, except the towns of Cuernavaca and Puente de Ixtla in Morelos.

Madero Faces a Mutiny.

It is reported from El Paso that a large number of Madero's officers are on the verge of mutiny as a result of the delay in the threatened attack on Juarez. Madero may leave his hands full controlling his men. Many of them are ignorant even yet that negotiations are on and that peace may be declared. When they learn this an outbreak is expected to result in a test of Madero's ability to control his own men.

Another El Paso dispatch says the answer of President Diaz to the rebels was received there today by Judge Carbajal, peace commissioner for the Mexican government. It was a long telegram, but the Mexican envoy refused to make its contents public. Immediately after its receipt he notified general Madero's representatives that he was ready to present his government's answer to their demands and arrangements were made for a conference.

INDICT KELLEY IN DEATH CASE

Coleman E. Kelley, a member of the old Common Council, was indicted for manslaughter in a report made by the May Grand Jury before Judge Stevens in the Superior Criminal Court. Kelley is charged with causing the death of Jeremiah Mahoney in South Boston on April 15. According to the police Kelley and Mahoney quarrelled at a wedding at which Kelley was an uninvited guest. Later Kelley met Mahoney outside. Kelley is alleged to have thrown a stone which struck Mahoney on the head and killed him.

After the report of the Grand Jury, Kelley was brought into court and arraigned. He pleaded not guilty and Judge Stevens ordered him held in the same bail on which he is now at liberty, $5,000.

The same report includes an indictment of manslaughter against Henry W. Crowley, who is charged with having caused the death of Gabriel S. Jones. The men were employed in the kitchen of a downtown hotel. It is charged that they quarrelled and Crowley hit Jones over the head with a cleaver, causing his death.

In the case of Mrs. Clara Russell, of Dorchester, who strangled her twelve-year-old daughter, Marjorie, the Grand Jury found no bill. It was decided that Mrs. Russell was insane at the time. It became known during the investigation by the Grand Jury and from the testimony of the medical examiner that Mrs. Russell had attempted to choke her child to death several days before she actually succeeded.

The report of the Grand Jury consisted of forty-two true bills and thirteen no bills. Of the true bills seventeen were for breaking and entering. There was on indictment under the white slave law. Louis Rossel, alias Louis Rose, was indicted on this charge. It is alleged that he took money from his wife that she earned illegally.

Late advices are to the effect that Sabillo, which has an American colony of between 400 and 500, is besieged by a mixed force of rebels and bandits and is in imminent peril of capture.

The rebels have practically isolated Mexico city from the rest of the republic. The Western Union lines are interrupted to all offices in the states of Sinaloa, Sonora, Chihuahua, Durango, Guerrero and Morelos, except the towns of Cuernavaca and Puente de Ixtla in Morelos.

"ROGERS BROTHERS" HOOK NIGHT WINNERS

So many of the amateurs at the Columbia theatre last night made good that the hook almost lost its job. There was plenty of fun, however. Ben Sussan's imitation of Peter Dooley was so true to life that everybody thought it was the real Peter. Ben Allen made a charming boy, and John and Jessie Wilson brought down the house in their song, "The Number on the Coatroom Door." The dancers caught the crowd strong, the Rogers brothers' clever wooden shoe work being first-class, while Joe King was second choice with his acrobatic dancing and tumbling.

MARIE BUCKMAN, AT HEAD OF EGYPT EXPLORATION FUND

AMERICAN FINDS OSIRIS SHRINE

Through Mrs. Marie N. Buckman of Boston, who is American secretary for the Egyptian exploration fund, a report has been made public of what is being done by a scientist from this country who is excavating the secrets of Egypt's misty past and is said to have discovered the very shrine of Osiris. He is Professor Thomas Whittemore of Tufts College, and he left home in January last to join the staff of explorers who are at work at Abydos. He is working with Mons. E. Naville, a famous Egyptologist from France. The explorers excavated a sloping passage behind the ancient temple of Seti and regarding what was found Prof. Whittemore writes:

"We believe, judging from Monsieur Naville's experience in the eleventh dynasty temple at Deir-el-Bahari, that this passage, like the one here leading to the sanctuary, may be the entrance to the shrine of Osiris itself."

Some remarkable discoveries are expected soon, and they may throw light on Osiris worship by ancient Egyptians. Osiris was worshipped as the sun-god and as the source of life and wealth. He was supposed to be the judge before whom all who died must pass in the underworld, and to his shrine hordes of pilgrims constantly came in days long before Moses led the Hebrews out of Egypt.

Regarding the work being done by Professor Whittemore and his associates, Mrs. Buckman says:

"Abydos has been the scene of our labors at intervals during the past ten years. Since Prof. Petrie's excavations at the royal tombs in 1900 disclosed what is considered to be the most antique artistic jewelry in existence and revealed an age of art and culture startling in its perfection, Abydos has continued to grow in the interest of its revelations. Six large volumes and twice that number of reports transcend the scientific results of our labors at this site, while the importance of the problems yet unsolved compels a concentration of effort there to unravel the historical significance of the many indices to ancient mysteries."

FIGHTS L DEAL FOR WEST END

Thomas G. Bremer of the Parker, Whidden Co., No. 4 Winthrop square, has written Chairman Frank P. Bennett, Jr., of the legislative Joint Committee on Street Railways, explaining why stockholders of the old West End street railway are reluctant "to accept the terms dictated by the municipal company," which is the Boston Elevated and which, after long operating the other line, now seeks to buy it. The sale question is pending before the Legislature.

Mr. Bremer calls Chairman Bennett's attention to three specific facts which he says he thinks has so far missed public consideration, and says:

"I refer to the relative ratings of the two properties, in market value of securities, in mileage owned, and in the number of stockholders:

	West End	Elevated
Approximate market value of securities outstanding	$50,000,000	$40,000,000
Total mileage owned, computed as single track	394	24
Number of stockholders (approximately)	9,000	1,500

LLOYD GEORGE TELLS HOW ENGLAND PLANS TO AID WORKING CLASSES

LONDON, May 6.—Housemaids, typewriters, factory employes, dressmakers, milliners, clerks, and, in fact about everybody who works and stands in need of it, will receive the benefit of the comprehensive insurance provisions contained in the bill of David Lloyd George, which is regarded as the largest application of state socialism that has ever been attempted by any country.

The bill is to be extended until it takes in every kind of working people from a girl and boy to a widow or man, the latter under sixty-five years, in case of sickness the person insured is certain of a certain income, the best of medical attendance and the best of care. The author of the bill talked enthusiastically about it today.

Domestic Servants Included.

"Will domestic servants be included in its operation?" he was asked.

"They will," the Chancellor said. "Each servant will have her card, and 4d. (12 cents) in stamps must be affixed to it each week, 3d. coming from the servant and 1d. from the employer. When she changes places she will take the card with her. She will join one of the approved friendly societies, her card stating for her subscription to it, and in case of sickness she will receive free medical attendance and medicine, a sickness allowance of 7s. 6d. a week for the first three months, 5s. a week for the next three months, just like any other woman.

"There is a provision in regard to domestic servants and certain other women which I ought to have mentioned in my speech. Take the case of a servant who marries young. When she marries she drops her contributions and ceases to receive sick benefits unless her husband is State insured, in which case she would, when occasion arose, receive a maternity allowance; but if she becomes a widow, at whatever age, and resumes work, she can instantly resume her contributions at exactly the same rate as when a young woman, and receive the same benefits as before. She may be 50 years of age, at which friendly societies would not accept her under present conditions. That makes no difference. We accept her at the same rate as if she were 16."

"Does that apply only to domestic servants?"

Working Girls and Clerks Included.

"By no means. A typist, shopgirl, restaurant girl, laundress, factory girl and other girls under the same scale will all get the same terms.

"Clerks also come under the sickness benefit scheme. In this respect ours is an improvement on the German scheme, for the Germans are only at the stage of contemplating the inclusion of clerks."

"Does a charwoman, shopmate or a barber come in?"

"That is a kind of case very difficult to deal with. We cannot compel such people in proportion, but many of them, I hope, will come in by election. Who employs them? Who is to collect, 4d. a week? Somebody must. If they can do it themselves, well and good; but it is to be feared that in many cases they cannot. Wherever we can bring them in we must.

"A golf club will be regarded as the employer of its caddies, for instance, and pay its employes' contributions. Small tradesmen can come in. A cobbler, sometimes dressmaker and village blacksmith can come in. I can well imagine that many small tradesmen will think it worth while to join for the sake of the advantages of a well-organized and well-conducted scheme of State assistance. In a time of peace a shopkeeper, clerk, artisan and laborer are all treated alike."

"What is the position of a boy under sixteen who is at work?"

"We collect from him. We collect from everybody who is at work, whatever his age, unless it be over sixty-five. A lad under sixteen receives, in case of illness, free doctoring and medicine, and the benefits of a sanitarium if he becomes consumptive. We invest the money we receive from the young partly for the benefit of the young, and their parents are educational. Later, say than a lad joins at fifteen. He gets benefit pertaining to him he is thirty-one, just when, in all probability, he is married and bringing up a young family."

Lloyd-George denied that the scheme would result in the creation of a great number new officials.

Scheme Not Bureaucratic.

"Its great advantage is that it is not bureaucratic. The bulk of the work falls upon approved friendly societies. Naturally we must have a few officials to superintend their operations; but it will not be necessary for us to engage an army of officers in London and throughout the provinces to administer the funds. It will be done by the societies themselves, and that is a part of the scheme to which I am very much attached. This is entirely a matter for the societies themselves. What they stand to gain in solidarity they cannot have to benefits, and the amount of the benefits offered by the various societies will create a healthy rivalry between them.

"The plan therefore combines the advantages of State control with that of free competition between the various bodies who work it.

"There will be a central insurance board. It is impossible to work the scheme without one. Careful consideration is necessary as to the kind of body that will be required. We shall have to choose our men very carefully. Medical men must be represented on it, and, above all, there must be an experienced and skilful administrative board. We must also have advisory committees of experts to help it; but the ultimate control will be imperial, for this, like that of Germany, is an imperial scheme."

To Raise Medical Profession.

The Chancellor also pointed out an interesting and indirect effect of the measure.

"The scheme certainly will make medicine a better profession. It inquired as to the position of doctors throughout the country and discovered in impartial investigation that some of them were wretchedly underpaid. An improvement is required. I have the average figure per member per annum in my mind, but have deliberately refrained from mentioning it at present.

"I will only state that it shows a general condition of unrested labor that is the worst in the world. If you want to get the best out of a man you must pay him a wage which satisfies him, improve the position of doctors and you improve the general health of the country.

"I want to make the nation more healthy than it is. The great mass of diseases which afflicted us in the past can, and is, easily preventable. It is a better thing to make a man healthy than to pay him so much a week when he is ill."

VAUDEVILLE THEATRE ASSOCIATION FORMED

Representatives of more than fifty vaudeville theatres are forming the Vaudeville Managers' Protective Association of New England, a branch of a national association. By next Friday organization will have been completed, it was announced after a meeting held at No. 43 Mason street, K. G. Larsen of the B. F. Keith circuit was in the chair and Charles F. A. Smith was secretary. Among those present were W. H. Rocheville, H. A. Sawtelle, E. Quincy, Jennie C. McKissick, Alice C. Clark, Anna G. Jumin, Caroline Bell and Lyn T. Sanford. A sketch, "Mademoiselle's Mistake," was given by Ada G. Gregg and Lucy S. Clough. Mrs. John F. Lapham was chief select.

BIG CROWD AT DANCE OF DORCHESTER CLUB

There was a large attendance at an entertainment and dance by the Choral Class of the Dorchester Social Club of Women in Colonial Hall. The singing was under the direction of Minnie Soul Gould. The soloists were Miss Blanche E. Bertch, Margaret E. Quincy, Jennie C. McKissick, Alice C. Clark, Anna G. Jumin, Caroline Bell and Lyn T. Sanford. A sketch, "Mademoiselle's Mistake," was given by Ada G. Gregg and Lucy S. Clough. Mrs. John F. Lapham was chief select.

HARVARD DEBATERS WIN TWO CONTESTS

Harvard freshmen defeated the Princeton freshmen at Cambridge and the Yale freshmen at New Haven last night in the triangular debate series. In both cases the question was: "Resolved, that the United States should fortify the Panama Canal illegally granted." The teams taking the negative with Princeton and the affirmative at New Haven. Speakers for Princeton were P. Butler, Jr., J. L. Mott and J. M. Colt; and for Harvard, G. V. Selden, R. L. Wood and I. Levin. The award was by a two to one vote.

BEST QUALITY CONTEST ENDS

Watch for Winners in Sunday's American

The names of the winners in Eleanor Ames's contest: "What is the most excellent quality in woman?" will be printed in the Sunday AMERICAN.

The contest closed at noon to-day. Cash prizes of $10, $5 and five $1 prizes for the best letters.

By ELEANOR AMES.

This is the final day of the contest in which I asked for letters answering the question:

What is the most excellent quality in woman?

No answers received after noon to-day can be considered, as I wish to read every reply in time to announce the names six minutes after midnight Sunday AMERICAN.

Be sure to get the Sunday AMERICAN to-morrow. There you will find the names of those who are to win the cash prizes of Ten Dollars for the best letter. Five dollars for the second best, and prizes of One Dollar for the next five best letters.

The contest has been most interesting to me, and I am sure from the thousands of answers that have come in that it has been of intense interest to my readers.

On this, the closing day of the contest, I wish to thank my readers for responding so generously to my call for answers to this question. Inquiries have come in by thousands. There are but seven more to be given. Of course, many will be disappointed that only seven can win the prize. But there will be other contests in the future, and I am sure that numbers of my readers would be delighted and encouraged to try again if they knew how near they came to winning a prize in this contest. I am sure that this contest has been of interest and value to all.

May I suggest that you order to-morrow's Sunday AMERICAN from your newsdealer to-day, so that you will be certain of getting the paper and reading the list of winners.

Here are some interesting replies which I received in the last few days of the contest.

Bless the Cheerful Woman.

The most excellent trait in woman is cheerfulness. What is the most generous gift if not accompanied by a smile? What is thrift if practiced by one with a grouch? What are countless good qualities if not allied with a cheerful face? Cheerfulness helps in the lonesome world to procure positions and to hold them. It helps to make the home attractive and to keep it so. It is a lodestone, a drawing card always. The cheerful woman is sure to win.

"Charity" Leads All.

Charity which suffereth long and is kind, endureth and seeketh not her own seeketh purposes, thinketh no evil, beareth all things, not easily provoked, but rejoiceth and laugheth, combined with grace and loveliness is not mind to say all virtues in Woman, see most plentiful in Her.

CONGRESS FULL OF BALD HEADS

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—The sixty-second Congress is a bald-headed congress. Forty-three per cent. of the representatives are innocent of hair on top of their heads.

Forty-five per cent. of the Republican minority are bald. Thirty-seven per cent. of the militant majority are hair topless, too.

Never since the government was founded have the visitors to the galleries looked down upon such an expose of smooth and shining pates.

Of the bald heads in this bald Congress eighty-four per cent. are set upon the shoulders of young men, under forty-five.

This natural phenomenon is attracting national attention and is worthy of comment.

What makes baldness, and why are so many modern statesmen bald?

Why do we see superb specimens of young manhood like Ollie James and Richmond Hobson and Gordon Lee and Henry Clayton bald, while the gallant Speaker in the chair, himself a young man, loses something almost daily from the few scattered hairs that linger on his wise and royal head?

Is it serious thought, or early piety, or the absence of sunshine and air in the Congressional chamber?

Hobson Has a Theory.

Captain Hobson, who thinks deeply on many subjects, thinks that the skull has a miraculous arrangement by which it enlarges under high and serious thought, tightening the skin and making it impossible for the hair to grow. This may explain in part. But if the theory of serious thought were complete, why these two sessions of consecutive serious tariff debate ought to make the remainder of the House baldheaded.

On the other hand, the lapse of humor in the present Congress to ebb the skin and scalp sustains the Hobson theory.

All a baldness has come to Congress since Private John Allen took his stroll himself back to Mississippi. Adam Bede has been the only humorist since John Allen's day, and now Adam Bede is gone. The House is famished for a laugh.

Statesmen, however, are beginning to be afraid of humor and the outlook is therefore gloomy, under the Hobson theory, for the hair dresser in the House.

Why are more Republicans bald than Democrats? It is a fact. Because, say the Democrats, baldness is a first cousin of gout, and gout is the legitimate child of luxury and monopoly and the spoils system, which are the synonyms of Republicanism.

Why are so many Democrats bald? Because, say the Republicans, baldness is akin to drought and barrenness, and barrenness said Martin Littleton, the Republicans have monopolized on baldheaded so often that the bald has got into our hair.

The baldheaded members assert that baldness is an associate of brains and statesmanship, and point proudly to Champ Clark and Henry Clayton of Texas, and Hobson and James. But they forget the full rotten locks of Oscar Underwood, curley pate of Rayney of Illinois, and the bifurate glory of Martin Littleton.

Baldness Is Modern.

A glance through the Capitol galleries reveals the fact that few, if any, of the elder statesmen were bald. Jefferson's flowing curls were famous; Webster's massive brow shone out of abundant hair; Henry Clay's locks came nearly to his shoulders, and John C. Calhoun, that rast deep thinking logician, had the full, shaggy mane of a lion. Ben Franklin wore only baldheaded Presidents the country ever knew until the thinning crown of Cleveland, in his second term, brought him into line. And McKinley, the apostle of protection, was rapidly fulfilling the Hobson theory when he died at Buffalo. President Taft is a "progressive" in the baldheaded ranks.

John L. Rockefeller is, perhaps, the baldest man in the world. There is not a hair on his head from his neck to the top of his shining dome. He has spent thousands of dollars in an effort to grow a suit of hair. He has long since given up, but he told me once that among all the million needles which pierce and surround and proffered him, he had most faith in the daily anointing of his ivory scalp with ordinary writing ink.

And There Is No Hope.

There appears to be no hope for the Congressional baldness. It is plainly a progressive epidemic. It is increasing every year. At the present rate it seems logically likely that a decade hence there will not be a full head of hair in the American Congress. It will become a standard of congressional respectability. The shock-headed man must go.

Well, if Dr. Wiley's view be correct, that whiskers and hair are unsanitary, the future year should evolute under that shady dome a race of Congressmen who will have the healthiest of heads, with cool, wholesome brains to grapple and solve the complex problems of an enlarging civilization.

Perhaps that is what Providence and nature are forecasting in the baldheaded Congress of to-day.

CANON HIGGINS HERE TO-MORROW

The Four C's—Catholicism, Character, Courtesy and Charity," will be the theme of Canon Gilbert Higgins of London, the noted Catholic divine of England, before the Boston Chapter of the Knights of Columbus, in St. Rose Hall, No. 17 Worcester street, South End, to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Next Tuesday Canon Higgins will leave Boston for Washington, where he will be the guest of his cousin, the Hon. John F. Quirk, K. S., of Georgetown University.

Scene of Fire and Some of Rescued

FOUR RESCUED FROM NORTH END TENEMENT FIRE; FORTY OTHERS FLEE IN TERROR.

A crippled youth and three foreigners, helpless from terror, were carried from a fire in the double tenement at Nos. 19-25 Endicott street early to-day. Forty other persons, including many children, were forced to flee over fire-escapes and down smoke-choked stairs.

The blaze, which the police think was of incendiary origin, started in the basement of No. 25, and when it was discovered by Mrs. Julia Bernstein, who lives on the second floor over the store that extends the length of both buildings, it was well up the stairs and the shaft that runs up the rear of the house.

She began to scream to alarm the other tenants, and seizing Morris, the two-year-old Bernstein baby, and Max, who is five, she clattered out on the fire escape with Harry, the nine-year-old, and Sammy, the next eldest close after her. They made their way into the windows of No. 19 and through the rooms of Peter Codospoli and his family. The stairways there were filled with smoke, but they managed to make their way safely to the street.

Cripple Rescued.

Mrs. Bernstein's husband was away from home, and in her anxiety for her children she had forgotten all about John Korch, a crippled news vender, who boards with the family. Korch has hip disease, and he had just been discharged from the Homeopathic Hospital.

When the firemen got there he was at a front window, yelling for help. Lieutenant Jack Lane and Fireman Blakely of Protective wagon No. 1 were about a minute getting a ladder up to him, and Korch had been carried down almost before he knew it.

In the meantime most of the other tenants of No. 23 had run across the fire escapes into No. 19 and down the stairs, guided by neighbors and firemen. But three men who had been sleeping in the Polish boarding house that occupied the third floor, found the smoke and flames too thick and too perilous to penetrate. They were leaning out of the windows, shouting to those below and getting excited enough to jump when Captain Shallow's men got their ladders up. The terrified tenants couldn't make the descent alone and so they were assisted. Then the firemen went through the building as far as they could to see if everyone was out safely.

Start Investigation.

They found that everybody in No. 25 was probably safe, and then they went through No. 19, where the smoke was so thick that it looked as if the fire had mushroomed at the top of the building and was going back down again to the basement.

But a count of noses showed that from the top floor had fled Mr. and Mrs. Philip Goodman, taking with them their children, Celia, eighteen; Charles, sixteen; Helen, nine; Edwin, four, and several neighbors who had found their windows handy from the fire escape.

From the third floor had fled Adolph Dorenkewes, with his wife Sophia and their three boarders, Nicholas Tokoski, Edward Tomeshitsky and Mike Hunaro. Mr. and Mrs. Codospoli had gotten out early with their eight-months-old baby, Jennie, the four daughters of Mrs. Codospoli and Mrs. Francesca Marini and Mrs. Maria Pelagrino.

The fire did not last long after the apparatus arrived, although it had a stiff burn hold in the shafts and it ate up the stairs as rapidly as a person could run up a flight. When they got it under control the firemen set about making an investigation. It looked to them as if the fire had been deliberately set, and they were all the more suspicious because at the very same time yesterday an alarm from the same box called them to a blaze in a neighboring building that was almost exactly similar.

CALL JORDAN IN LAWRENCE CASE

LAWRENCE, May 6.—Instead of adjourning to Newburyport for the regular sitting, as was expected, the Essex special Grand Jury, which has been investigating the cases of alleged graft in connection with purchase of city supplies in Lawrence, took the probe into its own hands to-day.

Without the presence of District Attorney Henry C. Attwill to-day the grand jurors continued their sitting here. Forestman Robin Damon, the Salem publisher, telephoned to the police station for three patrolmen in uniform. The first of these police to arrive was sent out with two summonses. The first witness to arrive at the court house in answer to to-day's summonses was Alderman Thomas M. Jordan. This is the first time Jordan has been called before the present Grand Jury. He was not among the thirty-eight witnesses summonsed by District Attorney Attwill while the latter was handling the investigation.

New Summonses Out.

The second man to arrive to-day, in answer to the summonses by the grand jurors themselves, was City Treasurer William A. Kelliher. He was before the grand jury and the district attorney yesterday, being the first of four witnesses examined.

While these two witnesses were waiting for the grand jury to get through with some minor cases the patrolman who served summonses on them was seen starting over toward City Hall with two more summonses in his hand.

Report immediately spread about the Court House that the Mayor and entire Board of Aldermen was to be summonsed.

Events moved rapidly since the Special Grand Jury resumed its sitting yesterday, beginning at 10 a. m. yesterday, the grand jury and the district attorney examined four witnesses. These were City Treasurer Kelliher, Fred L. Snow of Westford, now charged with conspiracy to defraud the city; John J. Hannegan, foreman in the street department, and alfred Hannegan, his brother and ex-superintendent of streets.

Policeman on Guard.

After the district attorney left the regular grand jury room the grand jurors retreated up to the traverse jury room on the fourth floor and held a two-hour session in secret, with two policeman on guard.

The district attorney said yesterday that the grand jury would adjourn that day and re-convene at Newburyport Monday for the regular May term. But the grand jurors came into session here to-day without the district attorney and began sending out summonses on its own account. The district attorney said yesterday:

"I am not running the grand jury. They are running themselves. I am acting under their orders. If they want any more evidence we will try to secure it. As far as I go, the evidence is all in."

FAT MEN TRAIN BY FEAST.

About twenty members of the New England Fat Men's Club, who are in training for a mock trial in Ford Hall, May 17, went through their gastronomic motions at arms at the Revere House, with President W. D. Quimby directing the drill.

Special Notice.

YOUR NEIGHBORS KNOW

No doubt, if you yourself don't know, of many marvelous cures of Stomach, Liver, Blood and Skin affections that have been made by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, for it has a most successful record of over 40 years. These CURES embrace also many bad cases of Weak Lungs, Hingering Coughs, Bronchial, Throat and Lung affections, some of which, no doubt, would have run into Consumption had they been neglected or badly treated. We don't mean to say that "Golden Medical Discovery" will cure Consumption when fully seated, but it will strengthen weak lungs, improve digestion, and make sure, rich, red blood, thereby overcoming those lingering out disease-producing bacteria and giving robust, vigorous health.

It is the plump, well-developed man who "wins the prize" and has the fun socially.

Scrawny, skinny women are seldom popular. We all adore the plump. No decoration can hide a bony, skinny form.

Here is a chance to test free the one guaranteed reliable treatment which has "made good" for years in this country, and has taken England by storm, and which has just been awarded a gold medal and diploma at Brussels, Belgium.

Nothing in this line ever approached the marvellous success of this new treatment, which has made more thin forks plump than all the "tonics" and ineffective medicines for fifty years.

There's a reason. Plump, well-formed men and women are healthier than they eat. Thin, scrawny ones do not. Nature supplies the one thing which the skin-folks lack that is the power to assimilate food. This one thing, which restores the vigor, re-establishes the normal, all in nature's own way.

This new discovery puts on firm, solid flesh at the rate of ten to thirty pounds a month in many cases.

Best of all—the fresh, clean, pure, delicious food-concentrate is furnished in concentrated tablet form. Make's supply can be carried in the vest pocket.

No one need know what you are doing until your path in weight becomes complimentary comment.

Here is the special offer for the purpose of letting thin people in this community find out these claims for themselves, exactly what is claimed for them. In order to introduce and distribute for the next ten days, for the coupon below, a free 50-cent package of Sargol.

This large 50-cent free package will be sent you in a private and perfectly plain wrapper, so that no one but yourself will know the contents. Accompanying the package will be full and complete data and directions, letters of testimony, and a special letter or report, telling what in itself is well worth your time reading.

If you want to add ten, twenty, or even fifty pounds of good, solid flesh to your frame, do not delay, send at once for a free 50c package of Sargol.

All that you have to do is to cut out the coupon below and send it with your name, address and ten cents to pay for distributing, etc., to the Sargol Co., 158-E Herald bldg., Binghamton, N. Y.

SUFFRAGISTS DEFY B. U. BAN

A storm of protest has been aroused among suffragists by the action of the faculty of Boston University in forbidding the presentation of a suffrage play by the Equal Suffrage League of the university in any of the college buildings. The faculty also prohibits the use of the university's name on the program or advertising matter of the play.

Members of the league say the play will be given in Huntington Hall, May 19, despite the protest of the faculty. The faculty does not seek to prevent the play if the name of the university be eliminated.

How to Get Rid of Pimples

It is truly remarkable how Cadum, the new remedy, causes pimples to disappear. Bad cases are frequently helped in a week, and sometimes even sooner. Cadum causes pimples to dry up and fall off, leaving the skin as soft and smooth as a baby's. Pimples are a disease of the skin, and are not caused by bad blood, as many people suppose. Cadum helps these annoying and disfiguring facial blemishes, because it can be applied direct to the trouble, and its soothing, antiseptic and healing powers stop the itching at once. Cadum is equally good for rash, blotches, scaly skin, chapings, eczema, sores, eruptions, acne, psoriasis, etc. 10c and 25c per box. At all druggists'.

JUDGE MAY ACT IN GLOVER WILL

Judge Hammond in the Supreme Court today announced that he would decide next Saturday whether there would be a third trial of the Glover will case or whether he would himself decide the issue from the evidence at the trial in East Cambridge.

In making this announcement Judge Hammond declared that he thought the case was a proper one for the lawyers to settle among themselves and urged them to do so before next Saturday.

The decision of Judge Hammond followed the arguing of a motion filed by Attorney Fletcher Ramsey for the Glover will in which he asked that the issues in the contest for the jury be dismissed and that the case be decided by Judge Hammond on what evidence had already been submitted.

In arguing for the motion Lawyer Ramsey said:

"The estate is subject to great expense until this contest is settled. I am safe in saying that one-fifth of it has dwindled or will have by the time the bills contracted thus far are paid. The recent investigation alone cost $5,000.

"I think it only fair for us to have this settled. The other side ought to be willing to take their medicine as we are willing to do. We ask that you decide the issue. The public mind is permeated with beliefs in this case and we cannot hope to get a free-minded jury."

Judge Hammond said:

"I am prepared to make my decision on this matter now, but it seems to me that this is a proper case for settlement. I will make my decision next week Tuesday at 11 o'clock in this court room. That will give you gentlemen a week in which to endeavor to reach a settlement."

FISHING TREATY STIRS CANADA

OTTAWA, Ont., May 6.—The United States has committed a breach of international honor in failing during the last two sessions of Congress to enact the boundary waters fishery regulations, which, under treaty, they were in honor bound to adopt," declared J. D. Taylor, a Conservative member from British Columbia, in Parliament.

Mr. Taylor asserted that under the treaty the regulations drawn by the commissioners from Canada and the United States should go into effect without amendment. Canada, he added, had made concessions to remedy conditions in Puget Sound, but the United States Senate had made several amendments of an important nature, and had thus failed to ratify the agreement. He declared that Canada should file a protest with the British Ambassador at Washington.

Replying for the government, Mr. Brodeur, Minister of Marine, said that the attention of the British Ambassador had been called to the matter. The treaty entered into by the United States, he said, provided that the regulations drawn up by the two commissioners, David Starr Jordan representing the United States, and Professor Prince for Canada, should be adopted. The United States Senate claimed a right to review the regulations, however. The minister deprecated the "intemperate language" used by Mr. Taylor. He did not believe there was ground for a formal protest.

Mr. Borden, opposition leader, asked if Canada was bound to accept the amended regulations.

"Certainly not," replied Mr. Brodeur.

$500,000 HOME FOR A PASTOR

A half million dollar parsonage, one of the most expensive ever erected in America, is being erected at Richmond among the Berkeley Hills. The building will cost $250,000 and the landscape gardening surrounding it the same amount.

The pastor of the Congregational Church, the Rev. William M. Crane, whose wife is a Cambridge woman, is building it. The house will be of hollow tile construction, and located about one mile and a half from the railroad station on the crest of a hill overlooking the valleys.

On the first floor are large reception and dining rooms. The study on this floor will be fire proof, for the parson's library. Leading from this will be a room where, under glass covering, he will be able to write his sermons during the Winter months, and on the other side will be a Summer sermon room.

The servants will have rooms on the first floor. There is also a breakfast porch, which will be used in the Summer. The kitchen will be in charge of an experienced chef and six helpers.

On the second floor will be eight and day nurseries for the parson's children, guests' rooms and a large school room.

In the basement will be play rooms and a gymnasium. Altogether the house will have ten bathrooms. The fields of many rooms will be Italian, with high plastered walls.

The Rev. Mr. Crane receives a salary of $7,000 and pays $1,500 to his head gardener. He is greatly beloved in the village where he has done much good in educational and social ways.

His parsonage will excel the one erected at Great Barrington by Mark Hopkins twelve years ago. Kilhams and Hopkins of No. 9 Park street, are the architects.

SAYS CITY IS BEST LIGHTED

Commissioner of Public Works Louis K. Rourke has arrived home from the Chicago trip and declares that Boston is the best lighted city in the country.

"If we had one light in Boston in the condition of those I saw in Chicago and Cleveland a storm of protest would fall upon this office," he said. "Cleveland pays the lamplighters $18 per month, the city owns the equipment and the cost per lamp is $6.42 per year. In Chicago the lamplighters are paid $3.65 per lamp per year. In Boston the Rising Sun Company pays 20 per lamp per year for the lighting. The lamplighters in Boston get $50 per month. The lower price of the West comes through the employment of boys to do the work."

Commissioner Rourke says the lamps in the Western cities are not well kept up and that the service does not approach that of Boston.

In studying the bridge problem on his tour, Commissioner Rourke became convinced that the Bascule drawbridge, the upright structure instead of the swinging structure, is the best type on the market for use in Boston. This is the type the bridge favored for the Chelsea North reservation bridge to be constructed at a cost of $125,000.

GOVERNOR AIDS WOMAN MAYOR

TOPEKA, Mar. 6.—Governor W. R. Stubbs is going to take a hand in the women's fight for a cleaner Hunnewell, Kan. He said that he was waiting until the Attorney-General returns from a campaign against joint-keepers in Crawford County before deciding just what to do to help the women.

"This State is going to be just as dry as it is possible to make it," said the Governor. "Every power I have will be used to drive the bootleggers out of the State. The Hunnewell women will have all the assistance they need."

Mrs. Rosa Osborn and Mrs. Alice Hilton, whom the new woman Mayor, Mrs. Ella Wilson, wants to appoint as city marshal and city clerk respectively, complained to the Governor because the City Council ignored the summons for a council meeting made by the woman Mayor. They asked that the council be ousted. They complained that the Mayor did not get any help from the council in enforcing the prohibitory law. One member of the council is a railroad agent and he refuses to tell her who receives liquor at Hunnewell. This handicaps Mayor Wilson in bringing prosecutions.

"Yes, a letter was sent to Governor Stubbs," the woman Mayor said. "I did not write, but Mrs. Osborn and Mrs. Hilton did, and I agree with what they wrote. I am at a loss to understand why the men members of the Council act as they do. They certainly are working against the interests of Hunnewell."

AID FOR GIRL ART STUDENTS

Poor girls who desire an art education, but who are unable to get it because of lack of money, will be benefited by the will of the late Caroline E. Hamblen, which was filed in the Suffolk County Registry of Probate.

By her will she leaves $5,000 to the trustees of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, the income to be used to establish and maintain a scholarship in the School of Drawing and Painting. It is to be known as the Helen Hamblen scholarship and to be awarded each year to a woman who has shown sufficient talent to warrant assistance, and whose circumstances make it difficult for her to obtain an art education.

All the remainder of her property, which is believed to be a large amount, she leaves to her son, Jonathan Eddy Hamblen of New York. He is named as executor.

Good Health Week! Special Sale of "Sunkist" Oranges Begins Next Monday

"GOOD HEALTH" Week begins next Monday and, in honor of the event, the people of this city will be given the greatest opportunity ever known to buy fresh, luscious fruit at reasonable prices.

Millions of "Sunkists" Arrive

Five millions of the famous "Sunkist" oranges have just arrived from California by special fast freight. On Monday morning, when the great orange sale begins, every fruit dealer in the city will be supplied with "Sunkists."

Most Luscious Fruit Grown

Unless you have eaten a "Sunkist" orange, you do not know the delicious taste of a California orange right off the tree. "Sunkist" oranges are the fancy crop of TEN MILLION orange trees. Only a small part of this total crop are "Sunkist"—only the perfect oranges—those which are hand-picked, tree-ripened, sound and solid. No fallen, bruised or otherwise damaged orange wears the "Sunkist" wrapper.

"Sunkist" oranges are thin-skinned, seedless and fibreless. Never pithy, sour or tasteless. There is so little waste that they are the most economical oranges one can buy.

"Sunkist" means the highest quality of oranges. Big "Sunkists" cost more than small ones, but all are sold at fair, modest prices, as you will see at your fruit dealer's.

Oranges Build Health

Physicians everywhere are pointing out the health-giving properties of oranges and the demand for fresh, ripe, luscious oranges is simply astounding. During Good Health Week fruit dealers are always on the jump from morning till night. For this is the season of the year when "spring fever" is epidemic; when nerves and blood need toning up; when the system demands a change from heavy foods to the kind that increase bodily vigor and vitality.

Save Your "Sunkist" Wrappers!

Most people know the "Sunkist" orange at once by its ruddy, deep tint which shows that it was tree-ripened. Yet the sure mark of identification is the tissue paper wrapper labeled "Sunkist," in which each individual "Sunkist" orange is packed. An orange not packed in the "Sunkist" wrapper is not a "Sunkist" orange, but an inferior fruit. The wrapper identifies the orange and is valuable, too. Save all your "Sunkist" wrappers and get, free, as many of the beautiful Rogers Table Silver Premiums as you want. See list and description at right.

"Sunkist" Lemons

The finest lemons are now packed in "Sunkist" wrappers. "Sunkist" lemons contain 50% more fruit acid than other lemons. They make the best lemonade, sauces, ices, etc. Never thick skinned, dry or pithy. You save money by buying them. Premiums given with "Sunkist" lemon wrappers, too!

Valuable Dessert Spoon Free

The picture shows our new 1911 design, Dessert Spoon, actual size. It is of the same excellent quality and beautiful design as the orange spoon, but being larger and heavier is more valuable. Sent to you on receipt of 24 "Sunkist" wrappers and 20c additional. For each additional dessert spoon send 24 "Sunkist" wrappers and 20 cents.

This Fruit Knife Free

Our 1911 "Sunkist" Fruit Knife is shown here, actual size. It is made of special tempered steel heavily silver-plated. Fully guaranteed by manufacturers, Wm. Rogers & Son. Sent to you on receipt of 24 "Sunkist" wrappers and 20c. For each additional knife send 24 "Sunkist" wrappers and 20 cents.

Notice!

On all remittances up to 24c please send one-cent stamps, on amounts above 24c, send post office money order, express money order or bank draft. Do not send cash. Make your money order or draft payable to The California Fruit Growers' Exchange, and address your letters to The California Fruit Growers' Exchange, 34 Clark Street, Chicago, Ill.

You can secure these premiums with "Sunkist" orange wrappers, "Sunkist" lemon wrappers, "Red Ball" orange wrappers, or "Red Ball" lemon wrappers. If you will make it a point to buy only "Sunkist" and "Red Ball" oranges and lemons, you will not only get the finest fruits that grow, economically priced, but you will soon have enough wrappers to secure a complete set of the beautiful spoons and knives here shown.

EIGHT COLLEGES HAVE CINDER PATH EVENTS

Talk About Your Good News — By Tad

Copyright, 1911, by the National News Association

EIGHT BIG COLLEGES HOLD MEETS TO-DAY

Harvard vs. Dartmouth at Cambridge.
Yale vs. Princeton at Princeton.
U. of P. vs. Cornell at Philadelphia.
Columbia vs. Syracuse at Syracuse.
Yale Intercholastic meet at New Haven.
Amherst vs. Williams at Williamstown.
John Hopkins vs. Anapolis at Annapolis.
Varsity meet, Michigan at Ann Harbor.

To-day is the first big day for outdoor track games and all the big colleges will get into action this afternoon in real competition, and some good performances are expected.

Harvard and Dartmouth meet in their annual games at the Stadium and it is predicted that the Crimson athletes will have a rather easy time.

The Harvard team is weakened by the loss of Austin in the hurdles and several of the other men are not in the best of condition. The interclass games held at Harvard last Saturday gave the lovers of that sport their first idea of the strength of the team, and if the men keep up their work of last week throughout the season they should be able to cope with any of the collegiate teams.

Harvard has a good man in each of the fencing events and has a new record holder in the hammer throw.

Paul Withington has loomed up as one of the greatest college runners in the country. He ran the distance at the games last Saturday in 9 m. 34 3-5 s., and that is almost equal to the record.

Cables Out for New Mark.

Lawless ran the mile in 4m. 28s. Preble ran the half in 2m. 3-4 s., and Herb Kelley ran the quarter in great time. Captain Foster, Jaques and Warren did not compete in the games so it was a great chance for the other men to shine.

Cables, the new record holder in the hammer throw, will be out on the field and it is expected that he will register a win.

The Dartmouth varsity track team is none too strong and it is not expected that they will give the Cambridge boys much of a fight. The athletic strength of the New Hampshire College this season is in the freshmen, but they are barred from the meet.

Yale and Princeton are now on the slate for an even fight this afternoon at Princeton. The Blue men are the slight favorites, as several of their men made following at the games down in Philadelphia last Saturday.

Penn and Cornell Clash.

Hatchet and Kelly are out for the game, while Kilpatrick should win the discus, but a good fight is anticipated in the medley between Captain Chisholm of Penn and Captain Dwight of Princeton.

Penn and Cornell have their annual track meet down in Philadelphia and the Red and Blue men are strong favorites. They have a great team of runners and they are strong enough to pull out the meet.

Syracuse and Columbia field it out on the track and field at Syracuse and a good list of games is anticipated.

Amherst and Williams meet at Williamstown, Annapolis meets the Johns Hopkins men at Annapolis and the Universities of Michigan holds its annual varsity games at Ann Harbor.

BARRON IS CAPTAIN OF FRESHMAN TEAM

W. A. Barron Jr., of Newburyport, has been elected captain of the freshman track team at Harvard. Barron prepared for Harvard at the Middlesex school and is making the quarter-mile on the freshman team in close to fifty seconds. Coach Bowman claims he will develop into the best quarter man Harvard has had in years.

The freshmen will take part in their second meet of the year this afternoon when they run up against the team of Boston University, Sophomore and Tech Freshmen. The freshmen have only a fairly balanced team this year and will be lucky to be able to more than defeat their own class aggregation.

UMPIRE WAS WRONG, WILL PROTEST GAME

ST. LOUIS, May 6.—Manager Wallace of the St. Louis American baseball team today gathered evidence on which to protest Detroit's 4 to 2 victory yesterday. He will base his claim on the fact that Jim Hoffman was run out when hit by a batted ball in the third inning.

Umpire Sheridan, who called him out, admitted to-day he was in error.

Hoffman batted Pitcher Willett and was directed toward second base before Hoffman ran into it.

HORNE WINS.

In the play-off of the tie for high run in the amateur billiard tourney at the Elks' parlors last night, Horne defeated Waller by the score of 200 to 174. Horne gets a humidor and Waller gets a box of cigars for highest average.

KNOWLES HIGH SCORE.

The seventeenth game in the pool tournament at the White Bear last night resulted as follows: Knowles, 125; Vaglone, 85. The game to-night will be between Ryan and Gagnon.

NEW YORK May 6.—With two games of the series stowed away in the Red Sox belt as trophies of the visit to the Hilltop Manager Donovan made plans to-day to turn the couple into a triple and thus clinch a majority of the Yankee series.

Eddie Burger or Eddie Cicotte will be depended upon to make it three straight. Hal Chase is likely to use Russell Ford to-day in an effort to stem the tide.

"My, but that was some game yesterday," said Donovan. "The Speed Boys were right there with the willow and fielding like is some tally. The Sox have struck a gait now and I expect this winning business to keep up right along. Gardner was the star batsman yesterday with four hits with a total of seven bases, every man on the team except Hooper and Smith connected at least once safely.

To-day and Monday will wind up the Eastern part of the Red Sox program and they will start Monday night for Cleveland, where they will take on the Naps for four games, beginning Tuesday.

YALE TRACK SQUAD.

BROCKTON HORSEMEN IN OPENING RACES

The opening of the horse racing season at Brockton will begin this afternoon with a large list of entries in the six classes. There will be eight heats in the 2.20 class of the Brockton Driving Club at the Morse avenue speedway. A large crowd is expected to attend. Following are the entries:

Class 2.20—Colonel Royall, C. Q. D. Jr., Marvel P., Nonsuch, Mac Patchen.

Class D Trot—Frances Eade, Edna King, Alfingwood Jr., Pawnbroker.

Class 2.20 Trot and Pace.—Maud Estelle, Lady Mantis, Grace Hagen.

Class F Trot.—Brockton Boy, Janett, Fancora Robbie.

FALL RIVER LOSES THE BUTLER APPEAL

CINCINNATI, May 6.—John E. Torpby, president of the Fall River Club of the New England league, has lost an appeal to the National Baseball Commission by which he sought the return of Arthur Butler from the Boston Nationals or an additional payment for the player's release.

HOLY CROSS TRACK MEET WITH WESLEYAN

WORCESTER, May 6.—Wesleyan and Holy Cross will battle here to-day in their track meet, which should display some fast running. It is the first track meet at Holy Cross for several years.

COLLLEGE TENNIS.

The twelfth annual tournament of the N. E. I. L. T. A. will be held on courts of the Longwood Cricket Club beginning May 29, when events will be championship singles and doubles. No one who is a college graduate or who has played four years in collegiate tennis contests will be eligible. The entries close May 19 with T. B. Parker, No. 72 Ashford street, Allston.

WIN ON POINTS.

MILWAUKEE, May 6.—In a double windup to-night Ray Temple defeated Kid Graves in ten rounds on points, and Mike Gibbons of St. Paul defeated Gus Christie of this city the same way.

RUSTLERS CAN LAND TOP OF 2D DIVISION

By R. W. LARDNER.

The Rustlers have a chance to-day to jump to the top of the second division in the National League race. Another victory over New York and a defeat for the Cincinnati Reds at the hands of Chicago's Cubs will send Tenney's men to fifth place.

So this afternoon's game is one that the Rustlers want, and want badly. Manager Fred will probably depend on Pat Flaherty or George Tyler to pitch his boys to the needed triumph.

The chances are Metivaw also will work a left hander. He has two in line who haven't done much lately. Rube Marquard and George Wilhelm. The latter got into yesterday's thrilling affair just in time to see the tying and winning runs slip over the pan. But that only served to make him more anxious to get a chance at these Boston athletes.

Roy C. Miller is showing his value these days. Roy has struck his hitting stride and that means he is going to prove a terror to opposing pitchers, whether they hurl with the right hand or the left. It was he that put the finishing touch to that triumphant exciting conflict of yesterday's. Most of the Rustlers were waiting for passes to first. They were confident they could field. Doc was impatient. He also thought it would be a more graceful way of winding things up by using the ball to some safe spot, so he stung it.

Doc Miller, Batsman.

It's no joy nowadays for any pitcher to face Mr. Miller. In the first place, the rapid and vicious manner in which Doc swings his club around is bound to breed fright and fear in the heart of the most bumptious-like bagsman in the game. He goes up to that plate with the fine intention of getting his whiskers. Sometimes he swings at bad ones, and sometimes he hits them, too. But his eye is just as good as anybody's and his swing is healthier than most.

The closeness of yesterday's final score records the fact that of the former battles in which Al Mattern and Red Ames have been pitted against each other the opening meeting was in June, 1910, and the game was a pitchers' battle to the end, the score being 2 to 2. Every time they looked up before that it was a fight to the finish. On other occasions there were fie counts, but the game always settled for one or the other by a margin of one run.

Spratt Starts Things.

With the Giants leading by a score of two to one down in the Eastern half of the final inning and not a living soul on base, what odds would you ask on a Boston victory? That was the situation when the perfectly good pinch hitter, Harry Spratt, alias Jack, was sent up in Mattern's place. Ames hadn't gone so crazy on his pace as he did at that time although he had walked seven of Teaney's family. Spratt was like Miller; he preferred running. So he whaled a single to left and the tragedy was started. Josh Clarke had received three of Ames's gifts. He waited now and got another one. Out went Ambassador Latiman to tell Wilson to hurry the warming up process. Manager Tenney, who insists that pitchers get a good rest in Bill, watched four ball ones go by and strolled to first. The bases were full, but a right-handed hitter, and a good one, Charley Herzog, was up, so it wasn't policy to call in Mr. Wilson just then. Herzy did foul off a couple but finally succeeded in walking him, and Spratt trotted across with his win available tally. One more was needed to tie and Ingerton, who had one base hit to his credit, strode forth. McGraw could stand it no longer.

It was here that Arthur Wilson and George Tyler came in. George was getting going really nicely with Scotty. He had two strikes on him when the Rustler third sucker lifted a foul straight up. Wilson stood directly under it—so very directly that it almost spiked his feet as it sailed past him to the ground. Then Wilson last his aim and passed Ingerton, while Clarke came merrily in with the count that tied.

Boy didn't quit. He fouled one into the left field seats and then combed the pretzel last evening of Ames's gifts. He walked

FOLEY FIGHTS 10-ROUND DRAW

MANCHESTER, N. H., May 6.—Tommy Foley of South Boston and Young McDonough of this city boxed ten fast rounds to a draw. Foley had the better of the early rounds. He was aggressive and, with a left swing to the head and right to the body, he landed frequently and hard. In the third round he struck McDonough low and Mac claimed a foul, but the referee did not allow it. McDonough went on fighting and after the sixth began to take the lead. The final rounds were hard-fought, McDonough using a left to the face and right to the body with telling effect.

Kid O'Brien of Lawrence received a decision over Jimmy Sullivan of South Boston in a ten-round bout.

Kid Labore, 3d, of this city won a decision over "Hopper" Denis of Boston in an eight-round bout.

A battle royal between five Boston negroes furnished amusement for three rounds.

BRITTON IN N. Y.

Jack Britton, the Chicago boxer, who claims that he made Packey McFarland side-step a meeting with him, will make his first appearance in New York next Tuesday night, meeting Johnny Marks, a hard-hitting New York light-weight, in a ten-round bout.

Advertising Prevents Injurious Competition.

The tariff discussion in Congress offers merchant and manufacturer an opportunity to enhance their advertising by giving it a news interest.

For instance, take the manufacturers of silks. Suppose they were to start on a broad campaign of newspaper advertising calling attention to the fine quality of their goods and their value as compared with imported lines, and the fact that just as good goods were procurable in this country as are to be had on the other side. This would, to a large degree, offset any disadvantage that might arise from foreign competition.

Not long ago the proprietor of one of the largest independent woolen mills in New England told the writer that the general impression was in America "that high grade woolens were not made in this country; and yet," said he, "we are making in our mill goods which compare favorably with the best goods to be had in Scotland or England."

It had never occurred to this manufacturer, however, to make known the desirability of his goods, and the result is that he is the first to suffer from competition. The more persistent a salesman, as a rule, other things being equal, the greater the amount of his sales. This is particularly true of advertising.

Newspaper advertising is a persistent form of advertising because one is able to make frequent insertions. It is this advertising that the largest department stores find most effective and many of the national manufacturers are using more and more.

The Boston American presents an unequaled opportunity to the merchant who desires to cover New England. It has a larger circulation in Boston than any other paper. Each day you can lay your story before almost 400,000 readers.

If you desire further particulars address Trade Aid Department, Boston American.

WALSH IS AFTER ATTELL'S TITLE

Since the announcement was made that Abe Attell might retire from the ring because of injuries that he received in his last contest with Frankie Burns, there has been a big scramble on the part of the other 122-pounders to see who will wear the featherweight crown.

Foremost among those who are in the claiming mood are Tommy O'Toole of Philadelphia, Joe Coster of Brooklyn, Johnny Kilbane of Cleveland, Danny Webster of Los Angeles and Willie Jones of New York.

A new entry in the race was made today when Jimmy Walsh, the local boy, and claimant of the "International bantam title" at 118 pounds, said that he will box any of the above bunch at the weight Attell defended his title, at 122 pounds ringside, and he has $250 to back up what he says.

Jimmy declares that he is ready to meet any of them no ten days' notice. first come first served.

TEN ROUND IS LIMIT OF LIGHTWEIGHT GO

CHICAGO, May 6.—Packey McFarland has signed an agreement to fight Ad Wolgast, lightweight champion, ten rounds in Milwaukee on June 9 or 10, and if not in June on Labor Day, according to Frank Mulkern, a promoter of Milwaukee. The agreement calls for McFarland to weigh in at 133 pounds at 3 o'clock or 134 pounds at 7 o'clock.

Mulkern says he has Wolgast's word that either of the above weights will be satisfactory. He has wired to Wolgast at Los Angeles, the terms of the agreement and says he is certain he will receive a favorable reply.

FLYNN KNOCKS OUT KAUFMAN

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 6.—In one of the greatest heavyweight fights in the history of the prize ring Jim Flynn of Pueblo, Colo., knocked out Al Kaufman of San Francisco in the last round of a 10-round bout. The bout had 30 seconds to go, when Flynn sent over a left and right to the jaw, which sent Kaufman reeling on the ropes, and he fell on his back and rolled over with arms outstretched. He got up just after the fatal 10 had been counted, then staggered to the ropes and fell. His seconds carried him to his corner.

Seven times during the battle Kaufman was sent to the floor. Four of these times he got up at the count of nine and once when he was knocked through the ropes Referee Dan Shay helped him back into the ring. This was against prize ring rules; Kaufman was really out when this occurred, but he was allowed to continue. It happened in the beginning of the tenth round.

From start to finish it was the most vicious battle ever seen in Kansas City and was considered by authorities at the ringside to have been the best battle of its length ever fought by heavyweights.

From song to song Flynn tore after his victim like a tiger, doggedly working for one hope of his life, to knock out the man who knocked him out in the tenth round of a fight at Los Angeles.

He finally accomplished his purpose, and as the fatal 10 was counted Flynn danced like a boy with a new toy in the clean of the bout Flynn was in grand shape, while Kaufman's right eye was closed and he was a sorry spectacle.

BALDWIN WANTS A CHANCE AT WOLGAST

Alec McLean, manager of Matty Baldwin, has arranged two bouts for Matty that will occur in the immediate future. Baldwin will meet Johnny Marto in New York on May 19, and on Memorial Day Matty will go against Kid Saylor at Indianapolis in a bout scheduled to last ten rounds. Baldwin is in great demand and if successful in his bouts against Marto and Saylor, Jimmy Coffroth, the California promoter, is anxious to take Baldwin to town longer visit the Pacific coast and meet Freddie Welsh. In the event of Baldwin being successful against Welsh, Coffroth states in a somewhat lengthy letter that he will give him first chance with Ad Wolgast.

PAL MOORE OUT OF GAME THREE WEEKS

Jimmy DeForest, manager of Pal Moore, explains that Pal injured his hand in the second round of his bout with Jack Redmond Tuesday night. DeForest claims that Moore's hand is badly swollen, and that is why he called off the bout with Matty Baldwin which was originally scheduled for the Armory A. A. that day night.

"Pal was right with the Boston boxing fans," is the way DeForest puts it. "I have always been on the level with you boys and Pal will really be out of the boxing game for at least three weeks. He will positively come back to your city to show good faith when he is right."

LANGFORD-M'VEY BOUT IN LONDON CALLED OFF

Sam Langford and Porky Flynn and their manager, Joe Woodman, will not sail for England on May 10 as expected, but will leave the latter part of the month. The match with Sam McVey which Langford expected would be booked in London for Derby week has been called off by McVey. Langford and Al Kaufman will probably meet in Kansas City May 19, and the following week Jack Jeanette in a finish bout in Paris in June.

SHRUBB IS OUT TO GET RECORD

Alfred Shrubb believes that not only will he win tonight's race at the Arena from Fred Cameron, the speedy Nova Scotian, but that he will create a new world's record over a dirt track for the distance. The track, which is exceptionally fast, has been accurately surveyed so that in the event of new figures being created they will be accepted without question. Cameron naturally does not agree with Shrubb's ideas except that he believes that new records will be made.

Shrubb continues to be favorite, but at greatly reduced odds, which to-day were quoted 18 to 8 and gradually receding as Cameron's real form is becoming appreciated.

Few distance races held in this part of the world have created more interest than tonight's, as it will be Cameron's first appearance here since he won the B. A. A. Marathon of 1909 and his first race hereabouts as a professional. His admirers from the Maritime Provinces will be present in large numbers to root for him against Shrubb.

Two star wrestling matches will precede the run. In the first, which will be called at 8:15, Ali Hassan and Ed Strange will go for a thirty minutes limit, followed by John Perelli and Jack Leon, both of the thriller type of mat performers. This will bring the runners to the mark at 9:00 sharp.

BOXING NOTES

At last Ad Wolgast and Packey McFarland have come to terms. They have agreed to meet at 133 pounds ringside for a ten-round bout, but did not settle any championships. When Ad meets Packey that ten-round bout had the championship will not enter into it.

Jack Clarke Coulon and Frankie Conley will meet in a forty-five-round bout at Vernon, Cal., for the Pacific championship and $2,500 a side and a $2,500 side bet. The bout will weigh in at 116 pounds three hours before entering the ring.

Matty Baldwin is now being boomed as the Boston Bill Bonsall. What Matty is going along in great shape, and should have a name as well as some of the boys who are further away from the championship limit.

Mike Glover of South Boston has been signed to meet Eddie Welsh, the English lightweight, for a ten-round bout on May 16. The boxers will weigh in at 134 pounds ringside. Jack O'Brien is staging the bout.

Alvin Gale of Hudson is back in the ring and will start after the scalp of the Hopkinton boy. Young Wenman and Gale have been matched for a ten-round bout at 118 pounds ringside. Jack O'Brien will stage the bout. He fought a good draw with George Alger at the Armory A. C. regardless of the fact that Alger had many pounds to the advantage.

Many are wondering if Pat (Porky) Flynn has lost his punch or simply will not box the best of his weight. Wenman and Flynn were matched with Mac Langford. Flynn will meet Mac Langford at the Armory A. C. next Friday night and it is expected that he will show a full head of steam if he ever hopes to get the championship.

The Mayor of Racine, Wis., the town where the Johnny Thompson-Hugo Kelly bout was held, has put the lid down on future bouts in that city. He says he does not want his city to become an open sporting town.

Frank De Calzhan of the Knockout Club is in town and wants to get busy with Al Delmont and Young Brown. Calzhan had a draw with Lawrence on Thursday night with Kid Scalzo for his opponent. He is a big dandy and should not cope with the rest lad.

BURNS BEST BOY FOR AD WOLGAST

By ED. W. SMITH.

The fight managers haven't picked out the right Californian yet to take down the scalp of Adolph Wolgast of Cadillac, Mich. They hooked the champion up with a vigorous young person called "the Round Hogan" for a grand combat, but he wasn't the real goods.

Out in California they are saying that the best lightweight they have in their midst is Jimmy Burns, a boy who is said to be a sprightly kid named Frankie Burns.

Frankie has already shown Hogan the fallacy of his position in posing as the real California goods. In fact, Frankie did the job up so neatly that there wasn't the slightest question about it after the affair had been declared at an end at twelve rounds.

And Hogan didn't have much to boast of at that stage, for the short end was his.

Good Fights for Wolgast.

Hogan has made them think he is some body since he came East, but they are smiling at his chimes out on the Coast.

Of all the lightweights in the country capable of giving Wolgast a strong argument, barring, of course, Packey McFarland, who does not seem able to get any sort of a battle argument with the Cadillac man, Burns speaks of as the man he really give Adolph a lot of trouble.

His agent is now contracting with on the same order as McFarland's, and his power and endurance are going to be strong points for the German fighter to overcome.

Entered, all accounts from the Pacific Coast say, Burns is going to make it extremely unpleasant for Mr. Wolgast, and, while few think he actually will defeat the champion, they believe Adolph will ask for every dead once Burns once during the engagement.

See Good Future for Burns.

In New York the feeling about Wolgast is the exact reverse of that on the Pacific Coast. In New York, where they have seen him only in short fights, they think he is just a flash duk, lucky, indeed, getting away with it for so long.

On the Pacific, where they have seen him in long encounters, which are the true test of a man's ability, they know that he is a world beater, because he already has trimmed everything of his weight that has been sent against him.

If Burns should happen to turn the trick over Wolgast he would be the biggest find of a hero out there. Like most of the California boxing products, Burns is quite young for the strenuous boxing game.

They start them on the Coast almost while they are mere saplings, and usually train them for a number of years before they step in the ring. The South Bend boy is a product of this system, though, for he has been in the game and is practically a seasoned and experienced boxer now.

ROUSE O'BRIEN GETS DRAW WITH RITCHEY

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., May 6.—"Rouse" O'Brien of Boston and Jack Ritchey of New York, went ten fast rounds to a draw before the Canada A. C. Both men went into the ring apparently in prime condition. The bout was snappy and clean throughout. Each man bored a clean knockdown, and when O'Brien sent Ritchey to the mat it appeared for a moment that he had a chance to finish the bout. However, the New Yorker showed wonderful recuperative powers and boxed himself out of a tight place.

If anything O'Brien had a shade on Ritchey for cleverness, for both men executed some of the fastest work ever witnessed in Terre Haute. The ninth round found the boxers apparently fresh.

DIXON WINS.

MEMPHIS, May 6.—Battling Ram of San Antonio was substituted at the last moment last night for Eugene McGovern of Boston, who was to have been matched with Tommy Dixon. McGovern missed train connection. Dixon won the decision.

BILL M'KINNON WINS ON FOUL

NEW YORK, May 6.—Bill McKinnon, the Boston middleweight, won on a foul from Tom McMahon of Pittsburg in the sixth round of a scheduled ten-round bout at the National Sporting Club of America.

The Pittsburger had the better of the first two rounds, but he displayed no science and many of his swings were wild. In the clinches he fouled repeatedly and in the scrimmage in the sixth round he swung low with his right.

While the referee was warning him, he swung again with his left, hitting McKinnon in the groin. The Boston man fell and had to be assisted from the ring.

KILBANE MEETS RIVERS TONIGHT

Two featherweights worthy of notice get together to-night when Joe Rivers, the Mexican marvel, meets Johnny Kilbane of Cleveland in a twenty-round bout at the Vernon Arena, California.

Rivers first attracted attention on the coast, when he got decisions over Danny Webster and Johnny Regan, two of the best feathers on the coast. He has taken on all comers up to Attell and they have all fallen before his terrific jolt.

In Kilbane, Rivers will find his hardest opponent. Johnny does not claim to be a first rater, but the Ohio boy has a record that proves him a tough customer and is one of the best feathers this side of the coast.

Kilbane himself is not over-confident of weighing the scales tonight, and says that he will make him travel every minute of the twenty rounds that he is in the ring.

The result of the battle has much to do with deciding the featherweight championship, as the winner of the bout will probably be matched with the top notchers in the near future.

MAYOR TO HEAD ATHLETIC LEAGUE

To promote athletic clubs at the city playgrounds, plans have been made by the Mayor for the creation of a municipal athletic league, to be maintained under the direction of the city. The matter was discussed at a meeting conducted by Mayor Fitzgerald to Superintendent Magrath of the park department. Frank Thompson of Boston 1915 and Joseph R. Macaulay, formerly chairman of the bath commission and one of the N. A. A. U. officials.

Active steps will at once be taken to form a baseball league to include all sections of the city. Mayor Fitzgerald will act as president of the league and Mr Magrath as secretary.

At Mrs. Dolan's Boarding House

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

Miss Ryan Has Orange; the Rest Only Rice Pudding and Floating Island.

"AREN'T we ever going to have any fresh green vegetables? Here it is the last of April and we're still eating canned corn and canned peas." Miss White, the stenographer, passed on the dish of peas.

"Well," commented Mr. Carter, a clerk in a wholesale drug house, as he helped himself to a large spoonful, "I suppose she can't give us green vegetables while the second story front is empty."

"Since it's been empty all Winter, she don't stand much chance of renting it now."

"But there was a young man looking at it yesterday. I heard him tell Mrs. Dolan he thought he would take it, and that he would let her know definitely this week."

"Oh, they all say that." The law student reached over for the mustard.

"She's been advertising that room all Winter, hasn't she? 'Large, luxuriously furnished room, unexcelled table board, every convenience, ideal location.' Isn't that the way it runs?"

Rumors About Miss Ryan

"Will you pass the bread, Mr. Carter? Thank you."

"Did you hear that Miss Ryan is going away next week?"

"No. Is she? Where to?"

"I believe her sister has taken an apartment. She's going to live with her."

"Wonder what Mr. Dean will do? He's been pretty much going with her lately, Rush, here she comes now."

"No, Minnie, I don't want any soup," as the colored waitress came to wait on her. "I'm in a hurry. What have you got?"

"Just a little roast beef. Try to get it rare. And bring it as quickly as you can."

Minnie clattered out with unusual alacrity. Miss Ryan gave her a quarter every Wednesday and Saturday morning, who was served with much more promptness than the others.

"I hear you are going to leave us," returned the law student.

Miss Ryan smiled. "Yes, I'm going Wednesday."

"Oh, this hasn't been so bad," laughed Miss Ryan. "I guess Mrs. Dolan does the best she can for us. Things are pretty high now, you know."

"Lettuce is only eight cents a head. I saw some big heads for that this morning, and we only get three leaves apiece for our salad—when we have it."

Sorry to Leave Mrs. Dolan's.

"And, yet, in some ways, I think I'm rather sorry to leave Mrs. Dolan's."

The stenographer looked at the young clerk and whispered that 'she guessed she was sorry, to leave Mr. Dean."

"My, isn't he ashined up. Smell the bay rum!" some one whispered.

Mr. Dean, whose collar was very high and stiff, was bending over his soup with difficulty. He wore a black cutaway coat and a silk handkerchief of the same shade edged from his pocket.

Minnie reluctantly took his plate and returned with a dimpling slice of meat, mostly fat and gristle. Mr. Carter regarded it dispassionately, and looked sternly towards Minnie, who carefully avoided his eye.

"Rice pudding or floating Island?" demanded Minnie, as she cleared away the law student's place.

"Floating Island," he answered meekly. And a glass saucer, half full of the yellow custard, with a dab of white on top, was placed before him.

"Rice pudding or floating Island?" as she cleared away Miss Ryan's plate.

"Oh, can't I have an orange, Minnie?"

"Don't know, miss, I'll see."

She returned with a small orange which all of the other boarders eyed disapprovingly.

"Rice pudding or floating Island?" as she gathered up Mr. Carter's dishes.

"I think I'll take an orange, too, Minnie. Ain't no more oranges," curtly.

"Oh, very well; floating Island, then."

She gets an orange wherever she asks for it.

"Did you ever see such partiality?" grumbled the old maid. "That's one thing Mrs. Dolan should put her foot down on! No one person at this table should be favored more than the others. We're all paying the same for our meals. I call it most unjust!"

"Huh," the bald-headed man folded up his paper and pushed back his chair. "Why should you expect justice at a cheap boarding house? You don't get it anywhere else in life—do you?"

And with this rather startling bit of philosophy he extracted a toothpick from the back of the blue glass frog on the mantel and passed on out.

How should THEY know of the shackles
Binding them 'round and around?
How should THEY hear the wild Injuns
Whooping with harrowing sound?
Gyves of the dark Inquisition.
Dungeons of prisons of old—

E'en these could never affright them.
Who in LOVE'S bondage are held.
Roped by their shrieking assailants,
Lassoed again and again;
Red men (aged six) dancing 'round them.
THEY'RE just as happy as when

Silence of twilight or moonlight
Blesses their rapturous tryst.
Nothing on earth could annoy them;
Nothing—but Love—could be missed.
What are the grins of the youngsters?
What are the threats of their "focs"?

What would be Danger or Disaster?
Nothing!—the answer Love knows.
All through the sweep of the ages,
All through the annals of Life,
Love has been blind unto peril;
Love has been brave amid strife.

Never! as long as the Earth
Keeps on the track of its orbit;—
Never since man had his birth!
Love is itself the Great Bondage
Slavery sweet of the Soul,
Babies nor bandits shall bind it;

THE WAR IN THE AIR

A Thrilling Story of the Invasion of This Country by a Hostile Sky Fleet. By H. G. Wells. Copyright by the Macmillan Company

CHAPTER X.—(Continued)

IT is not within the design of this story to tell how the war in the air kept on through sheer inability to agree and end it until every organized movement in the world was as shattered and broken as a heap of colored beetles with a stick.

With every week of those terrible years history becomes more detailed and confused, more crowded and uncertain.

Not without great and heroic resistance was civilization borne down, out of the utter social confusion arose new, ruthless associations, brotherhoods of order, city mayors, princes, provisional committees, trying to establish an order below and to stop the sky slaver.

The stenographer ordered the young clerk and whispered that 'she guessed she was sorry to leave Mr. Dean."

A few minutes later Mr. Dean came down and took his seat beside Miss Ryan.

"My, isn't he ashined up. Smell the bay rum!" some one whispered.

Mr. Dean, whose collar was very high and stiff, was bending over his soup with difficulty. He wore a black cutaway coat and a silk handkerchief of the same shade edged from his pocket.

"Minnie, I'd like another piece of veal." Mr. Carter's voice was imperious.

And with this rather startling bit of philosophy he extracted a toothpick from the back of the blue glass frog on the mantel and passed on out.

Double Effort Destroyed

The double effort destroyed them.

And as the exhaustion of the mechanical resources of civilization clears the heavens of airships at last altogether an anarchy, famine and pestilence are discovered triumphant below. Those great nations and empires have become but names in the mouths of men. Everywhere there are ruins and unburied dead and sickness, yellow, mostly fat and risible. Mr. Carter regarded it dispassionately, and looked sternly towards Minnie, who carefully avoided his eye.

"Rice pudding or floating Island?" demanded Minnie, as she cleared away the law student's place.

"Floating Island," he answered meekly. And a glass saucer, half full of the yellow custard, with a dab of white on top, was placed before him.

A Different Person

Bert tramped through a country disorganized by pestilence, foodless and shaken to the very loose of its immemorial order.

He came near death and starvation many times, and once he was drawn into scenes of violence that might have ended his career.

But the Bert Smallways who tramped from Cardiff to London vaguely "going home," vaguely seeking something of his own that had no tangible form but Edna, was a very different person from the dreamy derelict who was swept out of England in Mr. Butteridge's balloon a year before.

His was brown and lean and enduring, steady eyed and pestilence smiled, and his mouth, which had once hung open, shut now like a steel trap. Across his brow ran a white scar that he had got in a fight on the brig.

In Cardiff he had felt the need of new clothes and a weapon and had, by means that would have shocked him a year ago, secured a flannel shirt, a corduroy suit and a revolver and fifty cartridges from an abandoned pawnbroker's.

He also got some soap and had his first real wash for thirteen months in a stream outside the town.

The vigilance lands that had at first shot plunderers very freely were now either entirely dispersed by the plague or busy between town and cemetery in a vain attempt to keep pace with it.

He prowled on the outskirts of the town for three or four days, starving, and then went back to join the brigand band for a week and so fortified himself with a few square meals before he started eastward.

The virtual cessation of postal distribution and the collapse of all newspaper enterprise had left an immense and aching gap in the mental life of this time.

Men and suddenly lost sight of the ends of the earth and had still to recover the rumor spreading habits of the middle ages. In their eyes, in their bearing, in their talk, was the quality of lost and deadened souls.

As Bert traveled from parish to parish and from district to district, avoiding as far as possible those festering centres of violence and despair, the larger towns, he found the condition of affairs varying widely.

There were few police in evidence, but ever and again squads of gaunt and tattered soldier cyclists would come drifting along, and such encounters became more frequent as he got out of Wales into England.

Amid all this wreckage they were still campaigning. He had had some idea of resorting to the workhouses for the night if hunger pressed him too closely, but some of these were closed and others converted into temporary hospitals, and one he came up to at twilight near a village in Gloucestershire stood with all its doors and windows open silent as the grave, and, as he found to his horror, full of unburied dead.

From Gloucestershire Bert went northward to the British aeronautic park outside Birmingham in the hope that he might be taken on and given food, for there the government, or, at any rate, the war office, still existed as an energetic fact, concentrated amid collapse and serial disaster upon the effort to keep the British flag still flying in the air and trying to brisk up mayor and mayor and magistrate and magistrate in a new effort or organization.

They had brought together all the best of the surviving artisans from that region, they had provisioned the park for a siege, as they were urgently building a larger type of Butteridge machine.

Bert could get no footing at this work. He was not sufficiently skilled, and he had drifted to Oxford when the great fight occurred in which these works were finally wrecked.

He saw something, but not very much, of the battle from a place called Boar Hill. He saw the Asiatic squadron coming up across the hills to the southwest, and he saw one of their airships circling southward again, chased by two aeroplanes, the one that was ultimately overtaken, wrecked and burned at Edge Hill.

But he never learned the issue of the conflict as a whole.

Found Brother Tom

He crossed the Thames from Eton to Windsor and made his way around the south of London to Sun Hill, and there he found his brother Tom, looking like some dark, defensive animal in the old shop, just recovering from the purple death, and Jessica upstairs delicious and as it seemed to him, dying grimly.

She raved of sending out orders to customers and scolded Tom perpetually lest he should be late with Mrs. Thompson's potatoes and Mrs. Hopkins's cauliflower, though all business had long since ceased. And Tom had developed a quite uncanny skill in the snaring of rats and sparrows and the concealment of certain stores of cereals and biscuits from plundered grocers' shops.

"Lor'," he said, "it's Bert. I thought you'd be coming back some day, and I'm glad to see you. But I can't ask you to eat anything, because I 'aven't got anything to eat. Where you been, Bert, all this time?"

Bert reassured his brother by a glimpse of a partly eaten swede and was still telling his story in fragments and parentheses when he discovered behind the counter a big bag and forgotten note addressed to himself.

"What's this?" he said, and found it was a year old note from Edna. "She came 'ere," said Tom, like one who recalls a trivial thing, "arstin' for you and arstin' me to take 'er in. That was after the lot'e and settin' Clapham Rise afire. I was for takin' 'er in, but Jessica wouldn't 'ave it, and so she borrowed five shillings of me quiet-like and went on. I daresay she told you—"

She had, Bert found. She had gone on, she said in her note, to an aunt and uncle who had a brick field near Bexham. So there at last, after another fortnight of adventurous journeying, Bert found her.

When Bert and Edna set eyes on one another they stared and laughed foolishly, so changed were they and so ragged and surprised. And then they both fell weeping.

"Oh, Bertie, boy!" she cried, "you've come—you've come!" and put out her hand and staggered. "I told 'im. He said he'd kill me if I didn't marry him."

But Edna was not married, and when presently Bert could get talk from her she explained the task before her.

That little patch of lonely agricultural country had fallen under the power of a band of bullies, led by a chief called Bill Parks, who had been the village butcher's boy and developed into a prizefighter and professional bully.

They had been organized by a local nobleman of former eminence upon the turf, but after a time he had disappeared, no one quite knew how, and Bill had succeeded to the leadership of the countryside and had developed his teacher's methods with considerable vigor.

There had been a strain of advanced philosophy about the local nobleman, and his mind ran to "improving the race" and producing the overman, which in practice took the form of himself especially and his little band in modernism, marrying with some frequency.

Bill followed up the idea with an enthusiasm that even trenched upon his popularity with his followers.

One can be but happy upon Edna tending her pigs and had at once fallen, in a wooing with great urgency among the troughs of slush.

Edna had made a gallant resistance, but he was still vigorously about and extraordinarily impatient. He might, she said, come at any time, and she looked Bert in the eyes.

They were back already in the barbaric stage when a man must fight for his love.

An Eventful Voyage

They had a long, eventful voyage. They were chased, or imagined themselves to be chased, for some hours by an Asiatic ironclad, which was presently engaged by a British cruiser.

The two ships fought for three hours circling and drifting southward as they fought, until the twilight and the cloud drift of a rising gale swallowed them up.

A few days later Bert's ship lost her rudder and subsisted in a gale. The crew ran out of food and subsisted on fish. They saw strange airships going eastward, fear the Asiatics and landed to get provisions and repair the rudder at Tonsefjo.

There they found the town destroyed and two big liners, with dead still aboard, sunken in the harbor. From there they got canned food and material for repairs, but their operations were greatly impeded by the hostility of a band of men amid the ruins of the town who sniped them and tried to drive them away.

At Mogador they stayed and sent a boat ashore for water and were nearly captured by an Arab ruse.

Here, too, they got the purple death aboard and sailed with it incubating in their blood.

The cook sickened first and then the mate, and nearly every one who went down and three in the forecastle were dead.

It chanced to be calm weather, and they drifted helplessly and indeed careless of their fate backwards toward the equator.

The captain destroyed them all with rum. Nine died altogether, and of the four survivors none understood navigation.

When at last they took heart again and found bundle a sail they made a course by the stars roughly northward and were already short of food once more when they fell in with a petrol driven ship from Rio to Cardiff, shorthanded by reason of the purple death and glad to take them aboard.

So at last, after a year of wandering, Bert reached England. He landed in bright June weather and found the purple death was there just beginning its ravages.

The people were in a state of panic in Cardiff and many had fled to the hills, and directly the steamer came to the harbor she was boarded and her residue of food impounded by some unauthenticated provisional committee.

The Aristocracy of Work

By DOROTHY DIX

A YOUNG girl, whose little feelings have been hurt by some of her snobbish friends, tearfully complains that as soon as a girl begins to earn her own bread and butter, she is cut by the other girls who give afternoon teas and go to matinees.

Then this young woman asks me this question:

"Do you think that a girl who works for a living in an office is the social equal of one who stays at home and is poor, but too proud to work?"

Oh, Ella, little sister, I don't think that the girl who goes bravely out into the world to fight her own battle is the social equal of the poor, miserable dependent who adds still further to the burden of an overladen father or brother. I think the courageous little soldier is so far above the cowardly, backboneless parasite that she needs a telescope with which to see her inferior.

As long as a woman has to depend upon somebody else for every mouthful of food she eats and every stitch of clothes on her back she is a slave.

So, if there is any turning up of noses and drawing away of skirts in your circle, little sister, you are the one that is entitled to it. Beat the other girls to the haughtiness thing.

But why should you care for the opinion of the silly and frivolous little creatures who spend their lives aping rich people, envying those who are better off than themselves and prowling around stores looking at finery they have not the money to buy, and who are of no possible use to humanity? What they think is of no consequence than the spitting of a cat.

You are beyond being affected by that. When you went to work you graduated out of the class of brainless dolls into that of real people. You assumed the duties and the cares of life. You took upon your little, tender, young girl shoulders your share of the world burden, and fell into step with the great army of workers who lead the march of progress.

You're one of the real women of the world—not a store dummy. It should thrill your heart with joy and pride to know that you are of some use, and that your work adds to the happiness or beauty or comfort of unnumbered people that you never see or know.

Besides, you are in touch with big events. You know real things, you see the big romance of actual happenings and your life is a million times more interesting than that of the dull little society girls who think that dress is the highest art in life.

Don't lose any sleep, little sister, over being snubbed by any brainless little upstart who doesn't invite you to her party because you work for a living, instead of sponging for it. Everybody whose opinion is worth having feels like taking off his hat as you pass by.

We all know the temptations that are offered every pretty young girl.

And get it out of your head, little sister, that there is any contempt in being called a working girl. It is a badge of honor. It is the visible and tangible recognition by society that you are of some account, and that you do not belong to the lobo class of feminine tramps, who do nothing but wander up and down the world, and sunstat by begging from men.

A woman mendicant is no more admirable than a man mendicant, and a woman should be just as much ashamed of not earning her own living and being dependent on others as she was as a man should. Idleness is a crime in women as well as men. We must all do something useful in the world. It is our only excuse for living.

Therefore be not ashamed of working. Be proud that you have the ability to work; and be sure of this, that the girl who scorns you for being in an office is envying you and wishing that she had courage to hold down a good job.

Just tell her that you belong to the aristocracy of labor, that you are free because you are independent and self-supporting, and entitled to bear as your coat of arms a pocketbook rampant, while her only appropriate device would be a beggar pitching a tin cup.

Our Swede Girl Objects to Some Songs

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"STEENA!" exclaimed my wife, "what in the world have you got against that poor carpet sweeper?"

"Carpet sweeper ban all right," replied our sulky servant.

"Then don't put so much energy into your sweeping. Can't you see that Mr. Jenkins is writing?"

"Ay s'pose so," said Steena. "Ay see him sitting over at desk. Ay s'pose he ban trying to write."

"Steena!"

"Val, Ay don't care," said Steena. "Last night Ay ban trying to write a letter op in my room, and yu folks sat giving me very guide chance to finishing my letter, Ay bet yu. Ay s'pose some people ban lak to write letters besides yure husband."

"Steena!"

She Knew Her Rights

"Oh, Missus Yenkins, it ain't any use for yu to talk cross to me. Ay bet yu Ay got my rights, tu. Ay bane trying to write nice love letter to my poleece feller, last night, and all yon folks ban down here in parlor, senging songs and yelling and laughing yust so hard sum you can.

"Ay can't getting my thoughts together, Ay tel you. Ay try aboot sexty times, and every time Ay start on a new sheet, writing dis har letter, to my poleece feller, yure husband skot start in again to seng some fool song.

"Ay lak to tal yu folks now. Ay bet yu, next time my poleece feller comes to call on me, Ay skol tal him vy Ay can't writing him the letter Ay promised to send him last night.

"Ay ban servant in yure house, but Ay tenk yu ought to giving me yust so gude a chance to do my letters as yu and yure husband ban having."

"Steena," said my now angry wife. "Put down that carpet sweeper and leave the room at once. After Mr. Jenkins has gone, you can come in and finish the rugs—not before. Now go!"

"Ay Skol Go," She Said.

"Ay skol go purty quick," said Steena. "Ay bane too gude and mad to stay har long anyhow. Yure husband and dese har friends of his ban making too much noise anyhow. Ay don't care much for men wokes, and dey ban senging all dese har barber shop songs so Ay can't writing my letter to my poleece feller. Ay bet yu it mak me gude and tired, and yet yu do dis again Ay skol giving yu gude chance to get another girl."

"Ay vant to tal yu yust one more teng, tu," continued our Swede terror. "Next time my poleece feller com and calling on me in kitchen Ay don't care for hearing sure husband sing dat song he called 'Plain Clothes Man.' He ban senging it in parlor last Vednesday, ven my poleece feller ban calling on me. I tink it ban rich say: 'And the only thing that was square about him was the square toed shoes he wore!' My poleece feller don't lak dis har kind of song, and Ay have to listening to dem, Ay skol give yu my notice, Ay bet yu my life."

"Don't Talk Back," She Warned

"Steena," I exclaimed, "you simply must stop talking back to Mrs. Jenkins. I know you are a good servant, but I also know that we stand for a lot of carelessness from you, especially when you think of the good wages you are getting."

"Don't yu talk back to me!" said Steena. "Yat yu tenk Ay care about gude vages? Ay tenk yu ought to know so Ay can going back to Stockholm to-morrow."

Then our jewel of a servant swept from the room, dragging the carpet sweeper behind her.

Desperate Desmond

ONCE ON TOP OF THIS CLIFF AND I WILL FIND MY SWEET HEART ROSAMOND AND WILL THE CUR DESMOND
CURSES! FOILED BY THE EAGLE WHILE THE BIRD I LOVED - I HAVE A PLAN HA HA
HORRORS THAT MEANS FOR ME IF CAN BEAR THE EAGLE I WILL ATTACK FIEND DESMOND
SO YOU WON'T MARRY ME EH? THEN YOU WILL DIE - MAKE CAUSE SOON
CLAUDE MY HERO!
HAVE YOUR WIFE DARLING I'M WITH YOU AND WE WILL WIN YET

This is going to be a cruel disappointment for Claude Eclaire. After climbing all the way up that cliff to rescue his sweetheart from the clutches of Desperate Desmond, he will be caught in the trap which the villain has set for him. At least, that is the way Desmond has doped it out. But he may have the wrong dope at that.

Pipe the eagle. Big one, isn't it? It has to be a big one, gentle readers; otherwise it would not be able to do the stunts which the artist has planned for it to do in the following pictures. We do not know whether there really are any birds in existence as large and powerful as this one, but then, you don't know either. That makes us even.

The eagle is popularly known as the bird of freedom, but when he gets his feet in a steel trap, he is no freer than you or me. Still, we're mighty glad the eagle beat Claude to the trap, otherwise our hero would have been in the villain's power, and you know what that means. But wait! Desmond still has something up his sleeve.

Tying Rosamond firmly to the eagle, the villain unfastens the chain which holds the trap, thereby giving the giant bird a chance to fly away with his fair passenger. Then he swings Claude's way, so that the latter will be at a disadvantage in the battle which must inevitably ensue. That crook always wants the best end of the argument.

But Claude fools him. Instead of remaining on the cliff to mix things with his arch enemy, he chooses rather to hang on to the rope and sail away to parts unknown in the company of his sweetheart. As we remarked before, this is an extra large eagle and perfectly able to carry two passengers. Some bird, what?

The eagle flies right straight for its nest, and the hungry eaglets are tickled most to death to see mamma bringing them two such dainty morsels of humanity. They don't have such luck as that every day. We've got Claude and Rosamond into an awful scrape this time, but we'll try to get them out again in Monday's pictures.

THE DE BERCY AFFAIR

The Romance of a Millionaire and a Beautiful French Singer

A Fascinating Mystery Story by Conan Holmes. Copyright, 1910, by E. J. Clode

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS INSTALMENTS.

MADEMOISELLE DE BERCY, a favorite of the stage, who came to London recently from her triumphs in Paris, and won her way into the best circles in the fashionable West End, is found shockingly murdered in her luxurious apartments at the Feldisham Mansions.

All London is mystified by the crime, and interest is led to the affair by the fact that Rupert Osborne, a young American millionaire, was about to marry Miss de Bercy. He was known to have called upon her late in the afternoon, a short time before she was found lifeless in her room.

Chief Inspector Winter of Scotland Yard learns, however, that Osborne has established a complete alibi. Winter learns that Mlle. de Bercy was really Mirabel Armand, the daughter of a peasant in Jersey.

While Winter is fretful over the prolonged absence of Furneaux, his most trusted detective, Inspector Clarke appears and tells of a taxicab driver who declares he drove a man resembling Osborne to Miss de Bercy's apartment about 7.20 the night of the murder. Clarke declares that the maid who discovered the crime had abouted in her delirium that Osborne had killed her mistress.

Winter decides the case is too important to leave in the hands of Clarke any longer, and adroitly sets the latter on the trail of two gamblers, James and Desartes. He decides to wait no longer for Furneaux, the one man he believes who could solve the mystery, and goes to Feldisham Mansions where he finds Furneaux, pale and worn looking. He is anything but himself. He tells Winter that all Clarke's deductions are wrong. He does not tell where he has been all day, but says that he saw Mademoiselle de Bercy when, as Mirabel Armand, she was the Rose Queen in Jersey, and that that early sight of her was the cause of his interest in the case, on account of which he had begun his investigation without orders.

The morning after the inquest Osborne looks upon himself as the most miserable man in London, for he felt that, in spite of his alibi, he was looked upon with suspicion by millions of people. At the inquest he had described his movements on the evening of the murder and then the taxicab driver had told of taking a gentleman dressed in a dark gray suit and a tall hat to the vicinity of Feldisham Mansions, where he waited for him about fifteen minutes.

"ARE you sure it was not Mr. Osborne?" said the coroner.

"Yes, sir—feastways, I'm nearly positive."

"Why do you say that?"

"Can any stranger enter the Mansions without telling you their business?"

"Not as a rule, sir. But it does so happen that between seven an' eight o'clock I have a lot of things to attend to, and I often have to run round the corner to get a taxi for ladies and gentlemen goin' out to dinner or the theatre."

So, there was a doubt, and Rupert Osborne had not realized its deadly application to himself until he read questing and answer in cold type while he toyed with his breakfast on the day after the inquest, which, by consent of Mr. Winter, had been adjourned for a fortnight.

It was well for such shreds of stoicism as remained in his tortured brain that the situation was still unable to give prominence and that no mention was made of the stone-as-dead found in Rose de Bercy's drawing room. The only official witnesses called were the constable first summoned by the hall porter and the doctor who made the autopsy. The latter, who was positive that Mademoiselle de Bercy had not been dead many minutes when he was brought to her flat at 7.45, and that the cause of death was a sharp instrument, and the coroner, who knew the trend of the inquiry would not safe public curiosity by putting or permitting the jury to put, any additional questions until the adjourned inquest. Neither Clarke nor Furneaux was present in court. To all seeming, Chief Inspector Winter was in charge of the proceedings and had the police.

Rupert ultimately abandoned the effort to eat, shoved his untasted tray from the table and determined to repersue, with some show of calmness and criticism, the practically verbatim report of the coroner's inquiry.

There he saw clearly two things—Rose de Bercy had willfully misled him as to her past life, and he was now regarded by the public as her probable betrayer and certain murderer. There was no blinking the facts. He had almost committed the imprudence of marrying a woman unworthy of an honorable man's love, and, as if such folly called for condign punishment, he must rest under the gravest suspicion until her slayer was discovered and brought to justice.

Rupert Osborne's lot had hitherto been cast in pleasant places, but now he was face to face with a crisis, and it promised to be soon if the force that had kept three generations of ancestors in the forefront of the strenuous commercial warfare of Wall Street had weakened or wholly vanished in the person of their dilettante descendant.

At any rate, he did not flinch from the drab reality of fact. He read on, striving to be candid as to meanings and impartial in weighing them.

At the end of the evidence were two paragraphs setting forth the newspaper's own researches. The first of these ran:

Our correspondent at St. Heliers has ascertained that the father and sister of the deceased will leave the island by Friday's mail steamer for the double purpose of identifying their relative and attending the funeral. There can be no question that their first sad task will be in the nature of a formality. They both admit that Rose de Bercy was none other than Mirabel Armand. Mademoiselle Marguerite Armand, indeed, bears a striking resemblance to her wayward sister, while Monsieur Armand, though crippled with toil and rheumatism, shows the same facial characteristics that are so marked in his two daughters. The family never revealed to their neighbors in the village any knowledge of Mirabel's whereabouts. After her disappearance eight years ago her name was seldom if ever mentioned to any of their friends, and their obvious wishes in the matter soon came to be respected by would-be sympathizers. It is certain, however, that Marguerite on one occasion, dared her father's anger and went to Paris to plead with her sister and endeavor to bring her home. She failed, as might be expected, since Rose de Bercy was then attaining the summit of her ambition by playing a small part in a play at the Gymnase, though at that period no one in Paris was able to foresee the remarkable success she was destined to achieve on the stage.

Things About Women No Man Can Understand

Their Amazing Partiality for the Black Sheep in the Flock.

"ONE of the marvels of feminine psychology," said the fifth man, "is the partiality that women have for black sheep.

"Nobody has ever even attempted to explain this, but it is a curious fact that instead of instantly resenting such a thing, the average woman is attracted by them, and that the whiter her angel robes are, the darker she likes his wool.

"I have often thought that the real reason men don't make more effort to lead the higher life is because we know in our souls that women don't want us to. They find us most interesting when we are regular devils of fellows.

"Did you ever notice the withering contempt with which a woman treats a genuinely goody-goody man? This is the more strange because women really have a passion for righteousness. They keep up the churches, and run the temperance society, and have a high ideal of abstract virtue that they strain after themselves. They also preach it to us, but woe to the man who follows their counsels! They set him down for a stay.

They Think It "Dashing"

"They are horrified at the thought of a man drinking too much. They turn up their noses at tobacco, and are ready to faint at the notion of a brutal fight, and yet I have still to see a Blue Ribbon or M. C. A. cutting any swath in feminine society. The gentlest saint of them all prefers the man who can hold his own among men, one who can drink a comrade under the table without turning a hair and who is ready to fight at the drop of a hat.

"You remember the bunch of old maids in 'Quality Street' who were in such a flutter of admiration over the hero, and who adored his pipe, although they were violently opposed to the use of tobacco? 'I think it is so dashing for a man to smoke,' said one. And that's about the attitude of women toward many other vices. They think they are dashing even when they disapprove of them.

"Naturally, women will deny the assertion that they like black sheep better than white ones—always remembering that the sheep must be of the masculine gender—but proof of it just took about you. What child does a mother love best, and have the greatest patience and tenderness for? The son who stays at home and works and supports her, who is dutiful to her and sacrifices himself for her?

"Not at all. It is for the black sheep, who has caused her nothing but anxiety and trouble all his life. It is for him that she saves the best of everything to eat, and the warmest place by the fire. It is for him that she actually steals a little of the money that her good children give her to run the house upon. It is the good children that she scolds, and is angry with, for not being willing to work and support their scapegrace brother.

"Who are the husbands who are best beloved when living, and longest mourned when dead? The good, sober and industrious men who have worked their fingers to the bone for their family? Not at all. Anybody would think that the women with husbands as domestic as the house cat, and as sober as the town pump, and as steadily worked as a cab's register, would be down on their knees thanking God for their luck. But they aren't. They are mostly yawning themselves to death in their boredom.

They Find It Interesting

"On the contrary, it is the women whose husbands cruelly mistreat them who appear to find matrimony most interesting. You seldom hear of a drunkard's wife divorcing him, as one would think she would do as soon as she found out that he would not control his weakness.

"Any morning, in the Police Court, you may see dozens of women swearing that they fell against a chair and got the black eye that their brutes of husbands gave them.

"The land is full of boarding house keepers, and other working women who are supporting lazy husbands instead of kicking them out of doors, as they deserve; and we all know heartbreaking cases of many a neglected wife, who has been forsaken for younger and fairer women, but who is patiently waiting for her husband to come back to her after he is so old and worn out that gayety has palled upon him.

"Oh, I tell you, there's mighty little encouragement for a man to be a good husband, if he expects to get his reward in bouquets from his wife.

"Observe, also, how fascinating wickedness, in men, is to young girls. When Othello wooed Desdemona he told her of the hair-raising experiences of his life, and she fell for it, despite the color line. Believe me, girls haven't changed, and there is still no way to capture a maiden's fancy equal to having a dark and lurid past.

"When a man makes a woman his Mother Confessor, and unfolds to her the story of his life, highly colored, and she undertakes the gentle work of reformation, all is over except sending out the wedding card. This play never fails, and is so well understood by men that I have known foxy youths, who had lived lives of blameless existence, who invented for themselves histories of crime that would have entitled them to be headliners in the Rogues' Gallery.

Why? Nobody Knows

"You know, and I know, any number of pure, sweet little girls who, in the face of all sorts of warnings and despite the opposition of their families, have immediately married men who were well-known drunkards, or gamblers, men of the worst possible character.

"Why? Nobody knows. It's just one of the mysteries of the feminine temperament that no woman seems able to resist the call of the black sheep. The minute it bleats, she gets up and leaves the ninety and nine all-wool, fine-haired maidens and follows it."

The Manicure Lady Had Stage Aspirations

"THERE was a boob in here this morning, George," said the Manicure Lady, "who tried to hand me a lot of flossy phrases. He said his name was Hamilton, and told me that he had been on the stage in his earlier years.

"He said that now he had become an impresario. He was so tall and thin and starved looking that I had a notion to advise him to go back on the stage and earn a fatter living.

"I don't know how much them impresarios draw down, but it's a cinch that the person to which I have reference to isn't making more than enough to keep Mary and the kiddies.

"It's a funny thing about them theatrical people, though. You would think, George, after a gent like this one I am speaking of had found that there isn't much coin in the game, he would advise all youngsters, like, me, to keep off. No, sir. He wants me to go on the stage. He says to me, 'You would make a great Rosamond, if your hair was only a little lighter.'

"And then he goes on to tell me how great and varied is all them opportunities to become a footlight star and have the swellest apartments at one of the swellest hotels. He quits me that most all of them great actresses got their start at the bottom of the ladder."

Stars in the Fat Class

"I suppose you drank it all in," said the Head Barber. "I hope you didn't fall for his talk, kid. You are too fat to be a good actress. The only two good actresses I ever knew that could enter in the fat class was Stella Mayhew and Marie Dressler. Yes, and come to think of it, May Irwin."

"I don't think I am fat enough to be barred," said the Manicure Lady, some what frigidly. "I am a little plump, I will admit, but you gotta nerve to call me fat.

"This bunch that come in this morning isn't the only gent that ever told me I was ripe and ready for the stage. Brother Wilfred has told me for years that my true sphere was behind the footlights.

"He started to write a musical comedy for me once, and after he wrote three songs of the opera, and a part of the dialogue, he read it to the old gent and a friend of the old gent's that had came all the way up town from Greenville to hear the scenario, or whatever Wilfred called it.

"This friend was in the show business, dad said, and he told me and Wilfred that if his friend didn't like the lines as far as Wilfred had got, there wasn't any use in going any farther. He explained that his friend had three moving picture shows over in Jersey, and said he was some judge of lines and situations.

"Poor brother Wilfred! I shall always remember how he stood up to read the love lyric which I was supposed to sing in the first scene in the first act. It went like this:

"'Ah, love! Oh, love! I love thee!
Yes, by the stars above thee!
I love thee as I never loved before,
And though thou sail for some far distant shore,
My heart shall follow thee, as flies the dove,
Ah, love! Oh, love!'

When Wilfred Got Sore

"There was a lot of other verses to the song, George, but when Wilfred had got all through reading them, this friend of dad's from Greenville said, 'Frank! It wouldn't get across the footlights, if it was sung by Grace Van Studdiford, let alone a rank amateur like this young lady here. If you could write me a few good parodies,' he says to brother Wilfred, 'I might be able to peddle them to some of the performers that works in between pictures in my moving picture shows.'

"Then Wilfred gets kind of sore and tells Pa's friend that he ain't peddling parodies to nobody, and he fends up his manuscript and puts it away in his trunk, where I guess it stays to this day."

"You show game in there for the big fellows these days," said the Head Barber consolingly. "You don't think you——"

But the Manicure Lady froze him into silence.

His Diagnosis

"CAN you tell me what on earth is the matter with my watch?" we inquired anxiously of the jeweler, one day last week.

The jeweler stuck his little dice box into his left eye and squinted at the instrument's innards. Then he looked up.

"You find it necessary to shake it real hard, every now and then to start it going, don't you?" he inquired.

"That's right," we acknowledged, wondering at the man's almost uncanny perspicacity.

"And you find it gets dusty, don't you? Perhaps when you open it from behind you don't blow hard enough on the works?"

"Oh, but I do—every day."

"Well, well! But are you careful to start the balance wheel going with a toothpick every hour or two?"

"Yes."

"And in spite of all your precautions, it needs about $5 worth of repairs. Now, that seems very strange."

For the jeweler possessed a dry and sarcastic wit that we didn't get next to until we had thought it over.

For Jill to wash her Dolly's clothes, as Anty Drudge had taught her,
"Rub with Fels-Naptha soap and put them in,
They'll be as white and as clean as a new pin."

What time on washday do you get through with your washing?

Ten o'clock, noon, three o'clock or night?

If you do it the old-fashioned, boiling, hot water, hard rubbing way, you're lucky to get it done by sundown.

If you wash the Fels-Naptha way in cool or lukewarm water without boiling or hard rubbing, you can be done well before noon and take it easy all the time.

And your clothes will be cleaner, fresher, sweeter than ever before.

Fels-Naptha Soap is a great time-saver. In Winter and Summer.

A half-day every washday means twenty six days a year saved by washing with Fels-Naptha Soap.

Isn't that worth while in addition to the saving on clothes, fuel, health and labor?

Time is money.

Use Fels-Naptha Soap every washday and save it.

Chocolate Layer Cake

Is one of the most delicious of cakes. An unusually delicate flavor and richness is added by using Borden's Peerless Brand Evaporated Milk as in the following:

RECIPE

Take one cup of sugar, one-half cup of butter, one-half cup of Borden's Peerless Brand Evaporated Milk diluted with one-half cup of water, two eggs, two cups of flour, and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Rub butter and sugar to a cream, add yolks of eggs, well beaten, then add the milk. Sift flour and baking powder together and mix with the eggs and sugar. Finally add the whites of the eggs, well beaten. Bake in layers.

FILLING: Mix one-half cup of Borden's Peerless Brand Evaporated Milk diluted with one-half cup of water, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of chocolate, one teaspoonful of cornstarch, and boil until thick. Put between the layers of cake.

WOULD MARRY CAMORRA SPY

VITERBO, May 6.—Gennaro Abbamaggio, betrayer of the Camorra, has become the hero of Italy. In his daily mail he receives dozens of communications from women and girls who are anxious to marry him. One received today from Turin says:

"I love you more than all the world. The Neapolitans may kill you, but I would rather be your widow than the wife of any living man."

Other letters received by the informer threaten him with death. Abbamaggio takes them all calmly and smile back at them with his old-time frank, boyish smile. He has received many gifts of money from America and is a newspaper correspondent by birth and training.

"Perhaps it better accept oh! American climate might be more agreeable for me than Italian after the trial."

The correspondent agreed with him. Abbamaggio was quite right. Before withstand when the Camorrist trial was resumed today, and two of the most notable of the prisoners were led before him. They were the priest Vito Vittozzi and Luigi Arena. According to the testimony of the prosecution Arena had solicited the services of Gennaro Cuocolo, a prison cell because he had been betrayed by Abbamaggio, and had hired Antonio Carmelo, according to Arena, had not only claimed all he had but turned his own pupils over to the police.

FAREWELL DANCE GIVEN BY GENEE

A crowded house greeted Adeline Genee at her performance at the Keith Theatre of the lyric and pantomimic ballet, "The Dryad." It was Miss Genee's farewell as a dancer in this country. She was assisted by the Morris dancers and Gordon Cleather, who sang a group of ballads.

"The Dryad" is a pretty conceit touching on a fair wood nymph who is imprisoned by Apollo within an oak tree and is permitted to come forth only for a few hours between sunset and sunrise, and she is able to find a mate before the end of the allotted time. During her brief hours of liberation she is irresistible to mankind.

COTTON CASE IN HIGHEST COURT

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Does a conspiracy to fix the price of a commodity by procuring a "corner" constitute a violation of the Sherman Act?

That question, which ranks in importance with the Standard Oil and tobacco Supreme Court cases, is to be decided by the government after the anti-trust indictment against the cotton speculators, James A. Patten, Eugene C. Scales, Frank B. Mayer and William P. Brown.

The government's position, as stated in that case by Judge Lurton, was that the combination that interferes with the right of the manufacturer to purchase a commodity means an inter-state conspiracy to monopolize and control the competitive law of normal market conditions, directly and materially affecting inter-state trade, violates the federal anti-trust statute.

Judge Lurton held that there is no direct relation between prices and inter-State commerce, and that the question of whether prices are or are not necessarily depend upon the business of price, and dismissed the indictment.

Preparations are being made to have the appeal case advanced so that it may be tried in October.

The indictment of the cotton operators arose from the bull campaign on the New York Cotton Exchange in 1909. It was charged that the alleged leaders profited by ten or twelve million dollars.

WOMEN OF LYNN HEAR MRS. PAGE

Mrs. Christina Page, Boston suffragist and candidate for police commissioner, was the principal speaker announced for the open air rally scheduled for 3 o'clock on Lynn Common. The meeting was arranged under the auspices of the Self-Supporting Women's League and the League of Municipal Progress. Mrs. Page, Miss Ellen F. Wetherell, Mrs. Mary Addie W. STOCK MARKETS STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

Although the general market situation looks better than for some time for an advance in prices, some of the strongest interests are opposed to such an upward movement now.

Speculation is in charge of younger partners and what might be called junior members. They are willing to stand alone unless they carry it to extremes, but the really big people are not in sympathy with the stagnant condition which prevailed some weeks ago.

Beet Sugar is being influenced by the candor of the directors, who admits that the earnings will be 12 per cent. on the stock, and that there will be no dividend for the coming quarter. It is very difficult to make quarterly statements of a business which depends on refining operations into a few months of the year, as the Beet Sugar Company necessarily does, and now that the annual burden of superintendence are broken down at the end of the year, it will be possible to send official statements of condition may restore the stock to respectability.

A new specialty which, though not widely distributed, is attracting considerable attention with its large earnings, is Underwood Typewriter, which was only recently listed on the New York Stock Exchange. The company is compelled to keep down its earnings to a reasonable basis, as it is before any dividend can be paid on the common stock. Large sums have been set aside already for next year, so that a dividend may be expected almost from the start. The surplus is to be used for retiring the preferred stock at a price of under 125.

Steel men who attended the Gary dinner are taking much more hopefully than they have been doing for several days past, while orders are not actually coming in large volume, a great deal of business is in preparation. They know this because of the big ore reports being sent in by the superintendents of the railroads throughout the country. These reports are of such a character that the roads must prepare to handle a record tonnage in the fall, and they are going to do it with their present equipment.

The Copper Producers' Association report, due early next week, is expected to show a record output for the country. The producers have decided, after several months of experimenting, that it does not pay to restrict output, because such a restriction means an increase in the cost of production which more than counterbalances any benefit derived. The business of producing copper is of such a nature that it can be done economically only when at full pressure. The copper people are planning a great deal for the future. Important discoveries of the month are that the only way to market copper is to sell it at a price it will bring when delivered, and that it does not pay to produce less than can be produced. The reverse is true.

The earnings of the Western Union are reported to be running at the highest rate in the company's history. GOOD THINGS TO EAT

Southern fruits are becoming dearer instead of cheaper, as the season progresses. The price of strawberries has advanced greatly lately. The best berries have been selling this week for thirty-five and forty cents a box at retail, and as much as 50 for twenty-five cents. Earlier in the season the best berries were sold for fifty cents and five splendid ones for twenty-five cents a box. There has been a downward tendency, however, during the past two days, and it is believed that next week will bring twenty-five cent berries of the best quality. The strawberries that have been sent up from the Southern States have been greatly superior to those received from Florida earlier in the season. The demand has been strong, and despite the large receipts the prices have held up well.

Grape fruit is also going up. A few weeks ago the low water-mark on prices for this breakfast fruit was reached in Boston, when fine large fruit sold for five cents each. The prices at present are about normal for this season.

Fish is still plentiful and cheap. The supply of cod and haddock are cheaper than they have been in recent years. Salmon is now selling at retail for twenty-five cents a pound and the halibut for twenty cents for it to the masters of vessels within the past two months.

Lobsters are cheap. The supply does not seem to be as much larger than usual, but the demand is light and lobsters are selling now for the lowest prices that have been known in Boston for years. Fine lobsters are selling in some of the popular retail markets at low prices of twenty cents a pound.

STOCK MARKETS REMAIN STEADY

STATE STREET, May 6.—Trading from taking during the last fifteen minutes' trading caused the market to lose what it had gained through short covering and closing prices were about on a level with yesterday's close.

During the early trading prices were allowed to sag by the utter lack of support from those who have acted on the bull side. A decline of 2 points in Rubber common, because of the showing of the company's report for the year, was in an effort to break the list. However, the decline was short lived and when prices began to rally short covering took them up easily. Though trading was at most wholly professional, little of it originated on the floor. The principal buying came from a few traders who yesterday put out some lines of shorts and did not seem to care their commitments over the holiday for they show that summers was not a bear market. The failure to make a break in wheat also helped to disheartten the bears.

Trading on the local exchange was dull and uninteresting throughout most of the session. When New York started profit-taking the local list sagged in sympathy with the miscellaneous shares showing the greatest declines. Copper held fairly well, but on only moderate buying.

The average statement of the New York banks for the week ending April 29 shows decrease, $1,874,100; other than United States deposits, decrease, $1,585,250; loans, decrease, $7,350,100; specie, decrease, $1,850,200; legal tenders, decrease, $821,800; deposits, December, $10,072,600; circulation, decrease, $140,400.

INSANE ASYLUM GUARDS FINED

MARLBORO, May 6.—Three attendants of the Westboro Insane Hospital were arraigned before Judge James W. McDonald in the district court here today charged with drunkenness, disturbing the peace and with assaulting police officers on this count. He declared them unfit for public employment. The defendants were Daniel F. Hurley, William R. Daley and Walter F. Brown.

Hurley and Brown were fined $5 each for drunkenness and $10 each for assault. Daley was fined $5 for drunkenness. The charge of disturbing the peace against the three was placed on file.

The men were arrested last night by Policeman Dufour. Hurley attacked Dufour and got him down. Then Brown jumped on Dufour. Sergeant and other officers went to the help of Burke. The three officers finally locked up after a desperate struggle. City Marshal Mitchell testified that several people from Westboro asylum than any other men in the force.

Money to Loan.

SEVEN REASONS

Why you should borrow from us: 1—You need not go to your friends for money. 2—You need not indorse. 3—We will forfeit $100 to a friend of your selection to borrow from us; 4—If you get your loan from us your friends will get it back in small payments. 5—You don't rule out married women, 6—You don't have to have employer or friends indorse. 7—Our rates are low, 1 per cent. interest per month. If you want to borrow $100, visit a solicitor, sign agreement not to charge you said interest if your employer or friends indorse, and pay the legal rate office. WAGE EARNERS' LOAN ASS'N, 19 Milk st.

BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, MAY 6, 1911

THE MASSACHUSETTS LOBBY AND THE INCOME TAX

Yes, Legislators Represent the People When They Are Free, But They Seldom Are Free.

Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey was present at a banquet the other night when Attorney-General Wickersham delivered his second tirade against the initiative and the referendum.

Mr. Wickersham declared that our Legislatures reflected public opinion accurately, and consequently the need did not exist TO EMPOWER THE PEOPLE themselves to pass upon important laws.

Now, before Governor Wilson was elected Governor of New Jersey, he had been president of the great college at Princeton, where, as a writer upon our public affairs, he had become a master of the THEORIES of our government.

Since he was elected Governor he has had a strenuous experience keeping the New Jersey Legislature true to the promises which had been made to the people at the last election. Now he has become acquainted with the PRACTICE of our government.

He is a man whose public achievement and intellectual stature cause him to be mentioned as a candidate for President.

His answer to Mr. Wickersham is interesting. Every man and woman who has a stake in the nation's welfare ought to appreciate the TRUTH and SIGNIFICANCE of Governor Wilson's words:

"I agree with the Attorney-General that our Legislatures represent our population. I agree with him that they represent the rank and file of our people. They are a fair sample taken out of the bundle. And I agree with him that if they were free to represent the people in making our laws they would very fairly represent them indeed. The trouble is not their character but their circumstances. If you are a very conscientious and a somewhat enlightened person and a member of the Legislature and the boss who nominated you holds your notes, you cannot represent the people unless you want to go into bankruptcy. I am not imagining a case.

"It has been said in recent weeks that I, by some means that I was not aware of, put pressure upon the Legislature of New Jersey to carry through the program of reform which they have carried through as well. I did nothing of the kind. I saw to it that pressure was taken off of them. What I was able to do by a fortunate concurrence of circumstances was to break the strangle hold of both machines and set these men free. I had one man come to me who could not break away. He said, 'I wish to God I were free to help you, but they have got my notes. They can put me out of business to-morrow.'"

Governor Wilson is right. Our Legislatures ARE NOT FREE. A deciding number of Representatives are enslaved before they are elected, and they are becoming less and less free; more and more enslaved.

The old-fashioned way of obtaining unrighteous legislation was by direct purchase of the vote. The lobby received from the special interests whatever price they were prepared to pay for the desired legislation, and the lobby thereupon proceeded to bargain with the members for their votes.

Bookkeeping in criminal transactions is never accurate, and the lobbyist usually put in his own pocket whatever from the purchase price he could manage to save by his sharp bargaining.

But the advent of John B. Moran in this State, the insurance investigation in New York; the conviction of the grafters in San Francisco, and other indications of popular restlessness have made the more vulgar method of downright buying and selling DANGEROUS and UNFASHIONABLE and antiquated.

They have varied the METHODS OF CORRUPTION now. The lobbyist still does the business of enslaving, but in a different way.

He goes or sends his agents during the Summer preceding the Fall elections into the different districts which elect Senators and Representatives. He becomes acquainted with the local political conditions. If it is a district which is sure to elect a Republican then he does not trouble himself further about the Democratic candidate.

If it is a strong Democratic district he disregards the Republican candidate. If it is a doubtful district he treats with the candidates of both parties. There is nothing so absolutely and sincerely nonpartisan as the methods of organized corruption.

When the local situation is ascertained, arrangements are made with the candidates MOST LIKELY TO WIN in the caucus of the party dominant in the district or with the strongest candidates of BOTH party CAUCUSES in doubtful districts.

If these men have all been touched with the breath of reform, he takes the NEXT strongest who will serve him, or he finds a locally popular fellow who will do, and puts him into the contest for election. Then he SUPPORTS HIM WITH MONEY AND JOBS for his friends in the service of some quasi public corporation.

By this method the different men who make a living in the lobby have UNDER THEIR COMMAND a large number of Senators and Representatives whom they OWN. The word "own" is not of our creation; it is a word the lobbyists often use among themselves.

These little groups of "owned" legislators with their lobbyist leaders are like the bands of mercenary soldiers that infested Europe at the beginning of modern times. Through their leaders they hire out to whatever interest is willing to pay the price for legislation which will not stand upon its merits.

The little bands often fight each other through the jealousy of their lobbyist leaders. Often they fight each other because some big special interests are fighting each other. But usually they log roll, each receiving the other's strength on matters in which he is interested and the others are not.

All this is not CRIMINAL merely because the law with its lumbering gait has not yet overtaken this particular method of corruption. But it is WORSE THAN DOWNRIGHT BRIBERY, because it is more insidious and because it corrupts the stream nearer the fountain. It goes to the home town and taints the caucus and the yet unhatched lawmaker.

By these practices was the income tax just killed in the Senate.

When the Senate voted down the income tax amendment they flew in the face of the President of the United States, both houses of Congress, the present chief justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, an

"Pass the wheat cakes! Ah, there's no place like home!" These words were uttered by Gilbert Goggles as he and his little family gathered around their frugal board. But suddenly a dark shadow fell athwart their humble dining room and a huge airship came to a halt outside the window. The next instant Gilbert Goggles found himself in the merciless grasp of a large and ferocious buccaneer. His pocketbook was seized, and with one bound Grocery Bill, the pirate—for it was indeed he—had regained the airship, and amid hoarse shouts of "Avast!" "Ahoy!" "Belay there!" "Stand by!" and "Oh, you Kidd!" the aerial monster disappeared in the distance. At that moment——

A Highly Important Event in the Literary History of New England

Please glance through this first chapter of "A Successful Wife." It is short. It is real. It is human. No "fine writing." It doesn't seem like fiction, because it is so simple, so direct. It is the romance and mystery of everyday life—the most wonderful and fascinating romance of all.

CHAPTER I.

MY father died when I was fifteen years old, and my mother, then ailing with the same malady, found herself dependent upon me, the eldest of her five children. The day of father's funeral the smallest child stayed at home with mother, and they sat waiting for us at the window when we came home. It was Spring, and even though I was sad I noticed the dandelions spotting the lawn like yellow stars.

Our house was a small wooden one, the yard only a few feet wide, and the neighbors could look in through our windows.

That night, when the children were in bed, mother and I sat talking in her room, and it seemed as though she couldn't live the week out—she coughed after every few sentences. Around her shoulders, over her nightdress, she wore a gray shawl. Her eyes were beautiful and clear.

"It is going to be hard for you, Esther," she said to me.

We were not a family of sentimentalists, but I think I said to mother then about the words she wanted to hear, though they weren't immortal or clever.

"Oh, we'll get along all right. We don't owe any money."

I asked her if she had enough covering, and whether she wished powders to make her sleep and she called me to her and gave me a kiss. Then she began to cough dreadfully.

I sat upstairs in ~~ bedroom for quite a while looking at "ads" in the paper. I noticed this:

The next day I went ~~ New York and applied. They engaged me at five dollars a week. We had enough money left from father's bank account to pay the funeral expenses and buy me a combination ticket, and the house rent had been paid for us by an uncle in the South for the last few years. This left me clear twenty dollars a month to feed and clothe six of us.

My remembrance of any tragedy in the situation isn't clear. There was never a moment of despair in our household. The people liked mother in Brackettsville. Nobody bothered us for money, and we lived for a year on kindness in the town and what I made. Then Fanny joined me in my daily pilgrimage to and from New York, starting in just as I had—at five per week, and I was raised the next year to ten dollars.

Together we fed and clothed and educated the boys. None of us were imaginative, so we were spared cooking up the miseries and worries that cleverer people make for themselves. We never saw anything "picturesque" or "dreadful" in our fight for life, and I never heard a complaint at home. I don't recall a wish expressed that was beyond the gratification of our means. Perhaps we were without hearts. Perhaps we were too proud. Perhaps way down in us were springs which years of need and care and repression had never suffered to be uncovered; perhaps that crust kept the waters still and deep. I do not know.

We had simple pleasures, and Fanny took them; I was too tired. For many years my midday lunch in New York cost me ten cents a day—no more. I was underfed and overworked. I went to bed right after dinner. Parties in Brackettsville didn't tempt me out, but Fanny loved to dance, and she had a party-dress and a pair of thin shoes.

Two years after father, mother died. I cannot write about it * * *

I went to the city the day after the funeral, and at 4 o'clock fainted at my machine. I don't believe I shed a single tear at the house. I felt as though the world were the big burden tied to my shoulders, and I gave way under it. I guess fainting is another sign of tears. When I came to I heard the office boy say to a girl they had called in from the next office: "Her mother was buried yesterday, and she is too proud to ask for more than one day off."

There is no reason why I, of all others in the wide world, should write the "annals of a life," unless it may be that in some way or other they may serve to encourage a woman here and there. Perhaps some woman with little education and a great deal of timidity may be interested in my life.

I don't think there is a creature living who would not love to be "successful," and who isn't ready to spend twenty-five dollars on a book which would tell them "how to succeed." You hear such a lot of talk nowadays about success! I don't pretend to write such a book. But looking at the opening of my life in the small Brackettsville house when five of us stood around mother's coffin, with only me to support the family—when I contrast that picture with to-day I suppose people would say that I have made a success. In this case, if what I have to tell can give any woman or any wife courage—why then, the pages are worth while!

The Massachusetts Lobby and the Income Tax

overwhelming vote of the House of Representatives and, most important of all, an OVERWHELMING POPULAR SENTIMENT.

Such is the power of the lobby under this method of electing our Legislatures.

It is not to be assumed that ALL the members of the Legislature are thus owned and controlled. A great number of them are free. But a deciding number—the balance of power—are "owned."

The Democrats this year are holding high the party standards and are gaining for their party the confidence of the State. EVERY DEMOCRAT IN THE SENATE KEPT HIS PARTY PLEDGE ON THE INCOME TAX.

Those Republicans who bravely withstood the lobby and voted for the Income Tax ought to be remembered in their districts WITH HONOR.

They were Senators Nason, Newhall, Nash, Ross and Schoonmaker.

Schoonmaker's vote was a most pleasant surprise, and on this matter he deserves well of his constituents.

The INITIATIVE and REFERENDUM will SET THEM ALL FREE for the lobbyist will cease to trouble them when there is an appeal to the whole people.
